Standing Room Only

Because of new rules, longer days and less vacations, 1984-85 was a slow year. However, Lincoln bounced back in 1985-86. Spirits soared as the year quickly passed. Many students made time to come out of their shells and support Lincoln in almost everything. Mr. Pittman's cart-wheel alone drew a good sized crowd.

gathered to cheer the girls on to victory. Highlighting the basketball season was a sell-out crowd against rival Rivet. The repeated plea of "Please move closer to your neighbor to allow more people seats," emphasized the high attendance.

Several other organizations brought large crowds to their various events. The Christmas number of people attending large and receptive, but the play was a huge success.

After a slow year, club attendance soared. Clubs were allowed to meet during the day as opposed to before and after school. Most clubs reported a sharp increase in the number of members and of their enthusiasm toward the club. Conse-

This rise in enthusiasm is not only good for the school, but also good for each individual as it gives each a chance to become more involved. It gives people a chance to meet each other and cultivate new friendships which in the long run is better for the school.

Between quarters the Pep-Band boosts spirits by playing the school song.

Riding in the annual Homecoming Parade helped to show everyone how enthused Sarah Hendrixson Wright, Tammy Tolbert, Stacey Biehl, Debbi Cullison, Melissa Melsheimer, Nancy Bilskie, Tabby Tabler and Stephanie Auberry were about the volleyball record.

Hanging out at the rec area helps to pass the few minutes of lunch.

By pinning on the title, senior Barry Kehl makes it official: Susan Pahmeier, Homecoming Queen.

As always sporting events were well attended. One of the shining moments of football came when Lincoln played Jasper in sectional competition. Inman field was packed to its fullest when the players ran out onto the field. As the girl's volleyball team completed its best record ever, people began to notice. Bigger and bigger crowds Choral Concert filled Shircliffe Theatre at Vincennes University. In addition, the band filled Clark Auditorium at one of their concerts. Standing ovations were given to those marching band members given awards throughout the night. Bringing in a good sized crowd was the annual Spring Musical, "The King and I." Not only was the quently, clubs were not only more active, but also more fun.

Several classes also jumped enrollment. Classes such as the Creative Writing class and Chemistry II had more people than in years before. "This increase in the interest of academics is very encouraging," said one person who had definite interests in the subject.

Demonstrating the problem of crowded classrooms is this chemistry class. This problem caused many schedule changes at the beginning of each semester.

Construction of the new high school began in the fall of 1985. This picture of the construction site was taken in January 1986.

Lincoln fans get into the spirit of things at the football sectional against Jasper.

Several students crash through the hallways during a five minute passing period.

Unfortunately, a year can't have so many positives without a few negatives thrown in to balance the scale. As some may have noticed throughout the year, the students were slowly outgrowing the school. With this growth came many problems.

High numbers of students desiring to take popular and re-trips across the school during five minute passing periods.

With the increasing age of Lincoln, built in the late 1800's, facilities became outdated as well. Lacking an auditorium, the choir was forced to hold concerts at Shircliffe Theatre at Vincennes University, and school programs and convocations were held in the coliseum.

place where a lack of facilities was evident was the physical education department. Parking also posed a problem for student drivers. Many athletic facilities such as tennis courts and a swimming pool were also unavailable on school grounds.

Those were the problems; the solution was this: the community of Vincennes pulled to-

General Contractors won the bid to build the new school which should be completed by early 1988. The estimated cost of twenty million dollars seems worthwhile after studying the plans of the building. Freshman Holly Morgan follows her float throughout the parade giving balloons to people who gathered to watch.

Even during class there is time to goof off. Junior Todd Montgomery and senior Jay Gegenheimer demonstrate this theory as they take a break from average classroom work.

Student Life

Building a float for the first time is always an experience. The Class of '89 didn't seem to have any trouble and came up with a great float portraying a hot-air balloon.

Homecoming candidates Angie Zanetis, Chris Julian, Stephanie Ziemer, Kelly Parmenter and queen Susan Pahmeier.

Varsity football players enjoy a ride in the parade atop a Vincennes Fire Engine. The boys went on to beat Washington in the game that night.

Several seniors get together just before the parade to put the finishing touches on their huge float. Many hours are spent putting these impressive floats together for Homecoming.

HOMEcoming! Football, pageantry, and fun. All are parts of this annual event. Classes begin work on their floats, football players select queen candidates, the cheerblock prepares for the dance, and the Student Council runs the show.

For the second straight year the Class of '87 came away with honors for the best float for their large and colorful creation. A huge Coca-Cola can was topped by three football players lifting another can. This can of "Lincola" was poured into a glass in a cooler marked "classic." Second place was captured by the seniors and third and fourth place were taken by the sophomores and freshmen respectively.

Many clubs, teams, and class officers also rode in the parade. In addition many Lincoln graduates from year's past got together to ride on a float.

Ten candidates for Homecoming Queen were nominated by the football team. These were Gail McCoy, Chris Julian, Angie Zanetis, Chris Newman, Carmen Cassity, Lisa Flynn, Susan Pahmeier, Betsy Brown, and Stephanie Ziemer. Of these, the students chose Angie, Chris, Stephanie, Susan, and Kelly to represent Lincoln as the Homecoming court. On the night of the game, Susan Pahmeier was crowned queen by freshman class president Amy Luking and vice president Angie Bullock. Escorts were Tony West, Barry Kehl, Paul Hendrixson, Curt Hidde, and Cliff Nordhorn. John Yochum escorted the 1984 queen Karen Kramer.

On their second attempt at float building, the sophomores created a colorful jack-in-the box. Every few moments a clown arose from the box while members of the class of '88 walked along the float.

Starting a tradition? It seems so as the class of '87 won their second float competition in as many years. Juniors, dressed in matching coke cans, accompanied their float along the parade route.

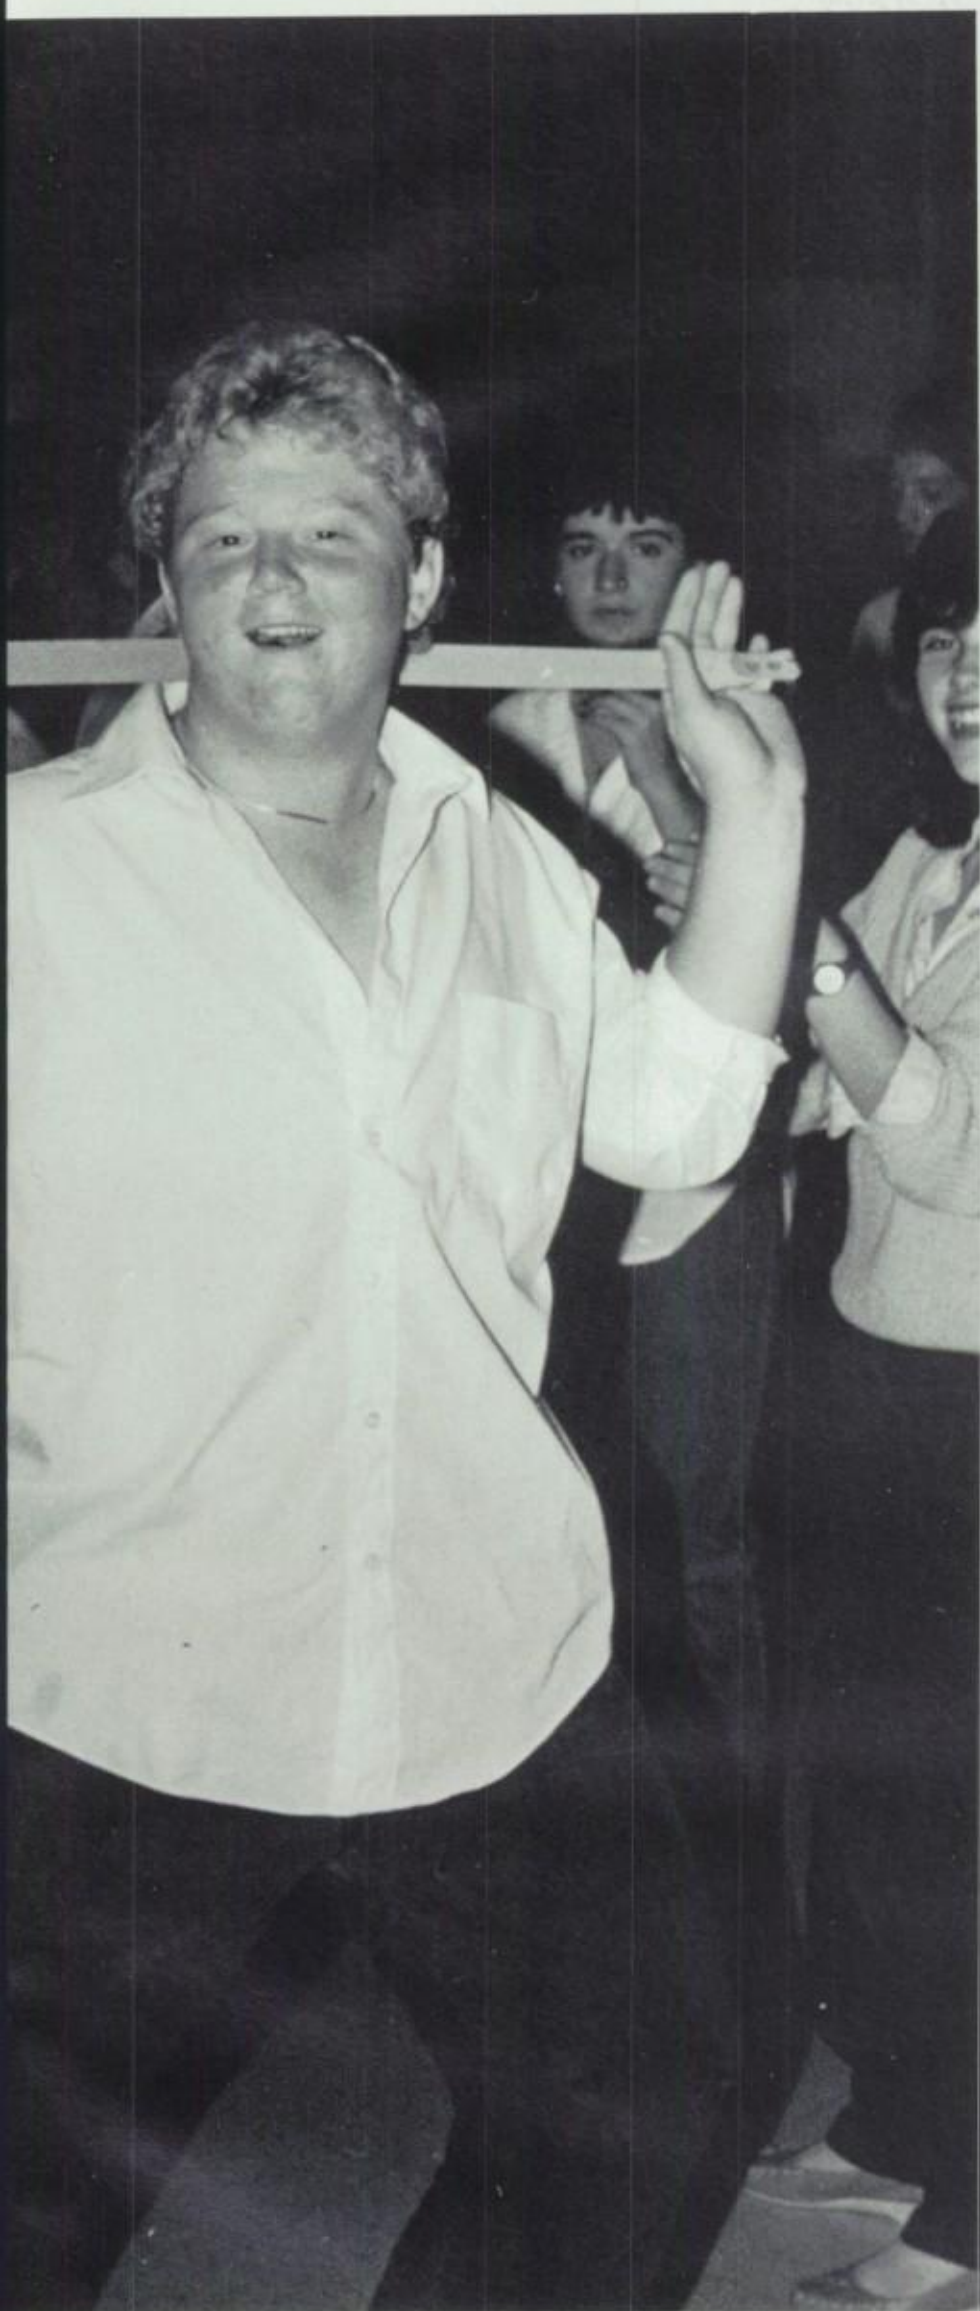

Homecoming Highlight of Fall

Senior Angie Crockett got into the swing and the theme of the dance as she dons a cowboy hat for the camera.

The newest rock duo? No, this is juniors Kathy Stryzinski and Debbie Cullison entertaining everyone at the dance.

Showing his friends the real way to dance, senior Mike Stewart happily entertains the crowd.

Holding on tight, junior Brett Davis does his best not to let his date, fellow junior Julia Barry, get away.

... And We Danced!

After the parade, the ballgame, and the crowning of the homecoming queen, it was time for the real fun to begin. On October 5, LHS students gathered at Washington Elementary School to celebrate the previous night's victory. With music provided by WRTB, students danced the night away. Cheerblock sponsored the western themed dance and pictures were provided by Cleveland Photography.

Camp Starts Band on Right Note

As other Lincoln students enjoyed the fun and sun of summer vacation, a hundred and twenty band members made their way north to the side of this year's band camp.

On Monday afternoon four busloads of anxious campers pulled into Camp Tecumseh. Upon arrival, members listened to a brief orientation by staff members, and then took time to explore their home-away-from-home. The day was concluded with the first of many long rehearsals.

Throughout the week band members enjoyed traditional as well as new r&r activities. Of these, freshmen initiation highlighted the week. The class of '89 modeled carefully created costumes put together by their seniors. These costumes ranged from a hot Tina Turner to the comical Three Stooges.

As always, "Kangaroo court" was held on Thursday evening. The Honorable Michael S. Stewart presided over the hearings. Band members brought cases before a senior jury that strived to reach a "fair and unprecedented" decision. For bandies whose behavior had been unacceptable towards their fellow members, sentencing was anything but light.

"Underclassmen learned that working hard could also be a lot of fun." Gary Goodwin, senior.

Many found themselves before a senior firing squad or covered in Vaseline and Rice Krispies.

Friday the long hours of memorizing, practicing, and preparing finally came to a close. As the band packed up and turned for home, they all knew that this was only the end of the beginning of still another successful year.

Parades are a major part of the year for the Lincoln Marching Band. Here the band is taking part in the annual Christmas Parade.

Many hours are spent putting a show together for marching season. The show is performed at contests and ballgames like this one against Jasper.

Emerald Eyes . . .

Lincoln started the 1985 marching season with a harder show and high hopes of getting a chance to go to state. Unfortunately, many things stood in their way.

"Although we worked more as a unit this year, things just didn't fall into place for us," one member said sadly.

The band worked with a much harder show this year, and extra hours and longer practices had to be installed to make up for this. Then, when the time came, weather made the final decision. After winning a first division rating in the District Contest, the band traveled to Martinsville for regional competition. What followed was a disaster. The band marched in almost three feet of mud and ruined several auxiliary uniforms. The pouring rain prevented Lincoln from putting on its best show, and, consequently, they missed the chance to go to state.

Officers of the marching band were Mike Stewart, President; Bill Marsh, Vice-president; Bruce Nall, Secretary; and Gary Goodwin, Treasurer.

Council members included Kip Bushey, Theresa Opell, Kevin Greenwood, Elizabeth Hopper, Brian Patrick, Kelly Spore, Jenny Balthus, and Jeff Marsh.

Their show included the songs "Squadron 633," "The Devil Went Down to Georgia," "Emerald Eyes," and "Every Time It Rains." One of the highlights of the year was the addition streamers and fans to the auxilliary.

The band looks to next year as a rebuilding year.

by Lesley Stedman

Earning a new show takes hard work and dedication as Mike Stewart, Lori Sanno, P.J. Szewczak, and Andrea Rollins demonstrate.

Parades aren't always exciting as they seem. Freshman Mike Grundman doesn't seem terribly excited by this one.

Extra instruction is given by Mr. Dougherty to Beatrice Joyce and Mark Blice during practice at band camp.

Sophomore Angela Cleveland and senior John Cooper pose for their picture taken by Creative Images. Different packages were available for the couples to choose from.

Senior Mark Hendricksen and sophomore Melissa Hendricks hold each other close as they sway to a slower number.

Crazy For You

Once again the annual Sweetheart Dance was a great success. The dance sponsored by the LHS Student Council was held at the National Guard Armory in Vincennes. Students began piling in at 8:30 prepared for a night of fun. Expectations were fulfilled right away with a beautifully decorated entry way of balloons and clowns expressing the theme "Crazy For You", a popular song made famous by Madonna. The dance floor was sectioned off by poles and streamers that helped to hold the false ceiling over the floor. Tables were set up at the other end of the room. Pictures were taken by Creative Images in a booth with a white background. The front of the picture was ripped red paper. Couples stood between the two colors. Music was accompanied this year by videos to add a new effect. When the room cleared and student council members finished cleaning up, the memories of the Sweetheart Dance still remained.

Boogieing to a faster beat, Dean McGuyer, Ginny Arends, Shannon Brown enjoy their evening at the dance.

Andy Jaquess and Christa Page take a breather from all the action out on the dance floor.

Dancing is fun but tiring and sometimes it is necessary to catch your breath. Dennis Stone and Jennifer Pritchard relax and enjoy the music.

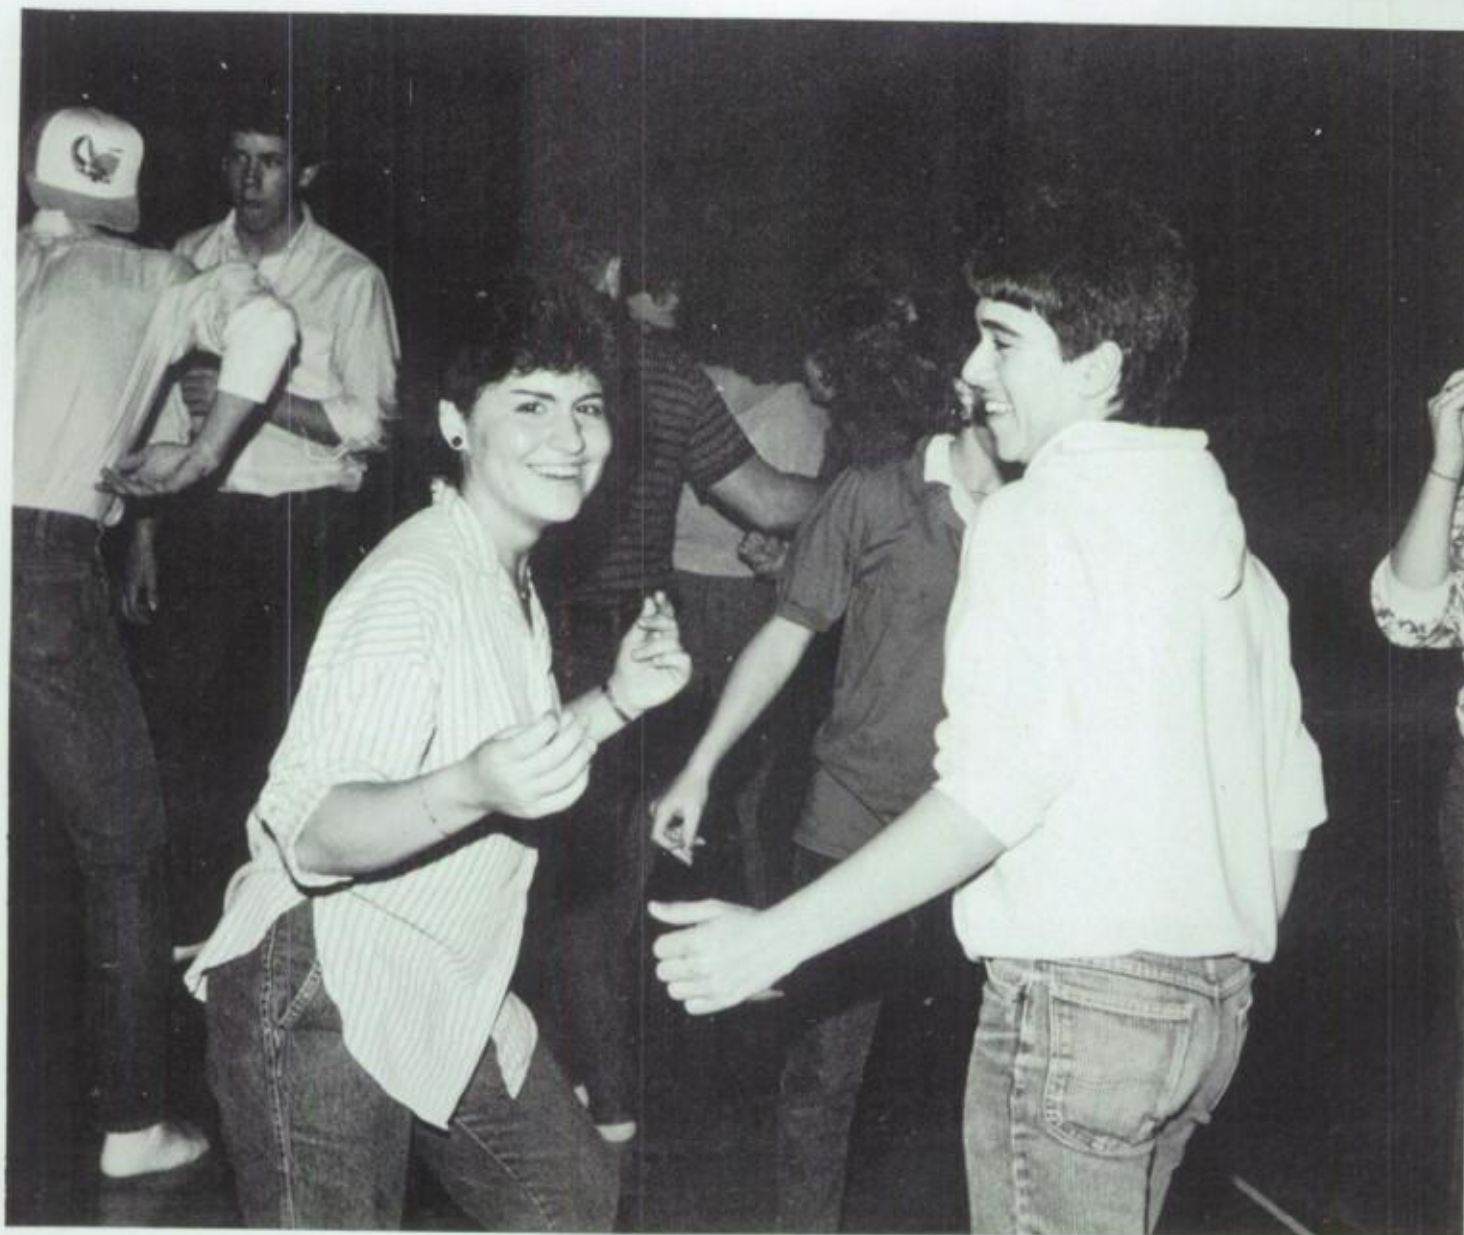

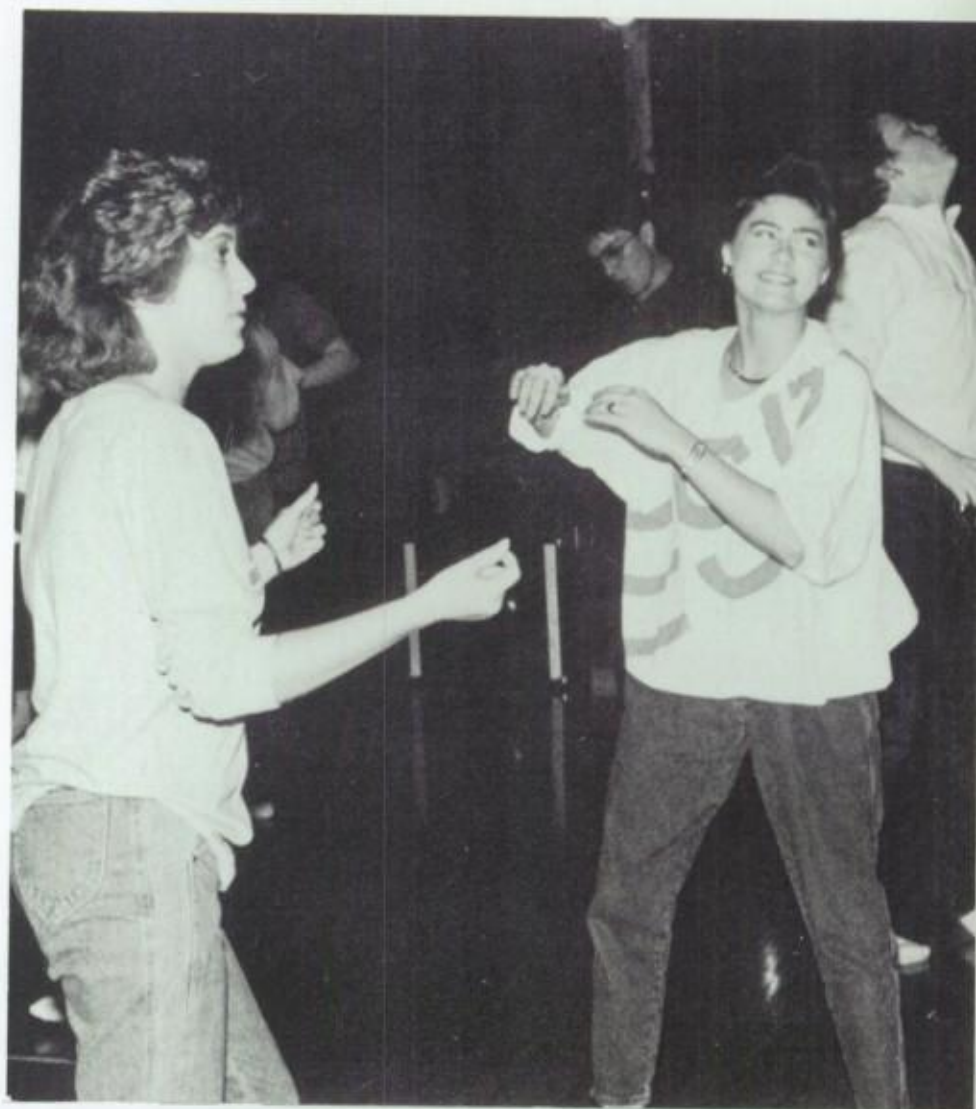

Bop Till You Drop

A new facet was added to the world of entertainment for LHS students during the 1985-86 school year. Sock hops after basketball games provided students with a change of pace and a chance to get together and have a good time.

The hops were sponsored by the choral department and were held periodically throughout the winter. Chaperoned by LHS teachers and choral parents, the hops boasted good crowds and music by WRTB. Held in the coliseum, the dances were open to LHS students as well as Clark and area schools. Fans of the opposing team played in the game that night were also invited to attend.

With the minimal cost, good music, and fun the sock hops proved to be a success.

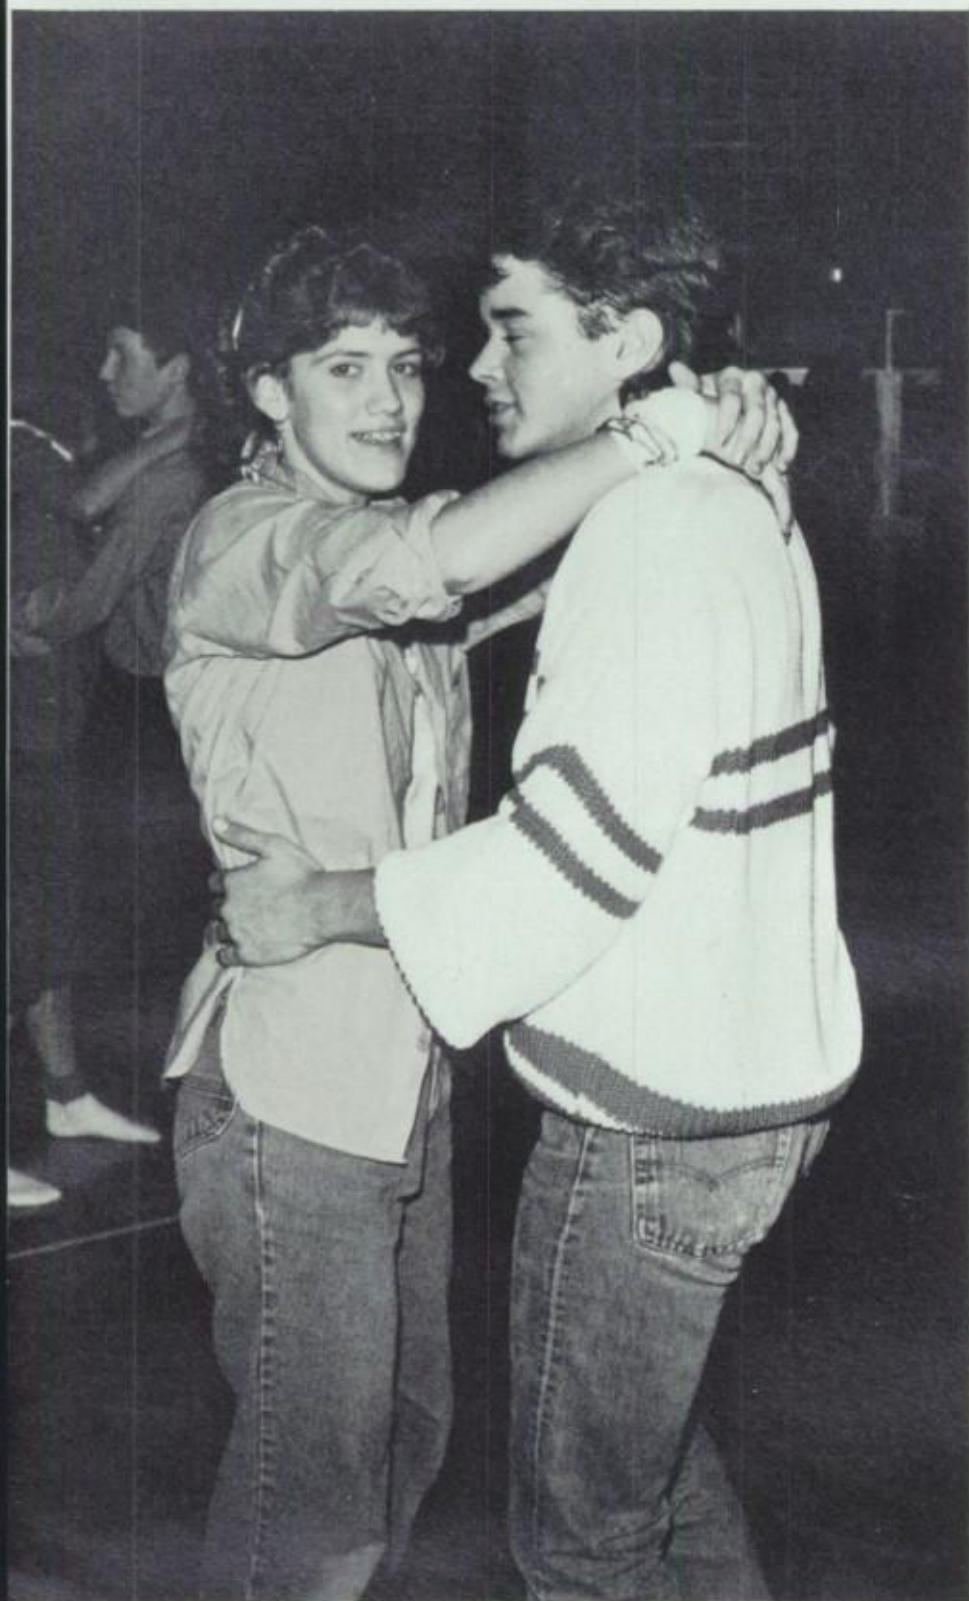

Dancing during a fast number, freshmen Carol Edmunds and Tye Waldroup take advantage of the good music to have some fun.

Senior Chris Bowman swings along to the music provided by WRTB. They played both fast and slow numbers.

"I loved the sock hops. It was a good place for everyone to go, without having to get pizza. We all had a great time." Shelby Stedman, freshman Catching their breath, freshmen Kelli Collier and Brad Spalding slow down and sway to a love song.

Spirit Sparks Enthusiasm

As basketball season grew closer to an end, the spirit at LHS was just reaching its peak.

Spirit Days were a part of the game preparations. Students took part in days such as Hawaiian Day, Hat and Sunglasses Day, or All Out Green and White day. In addition, each class had to put up as many posters pertaining to the upcoming game as possible. The total number of posters helped to determine the most spirited class honored at the end of the week.

At the pep session skits were performed by classes and the teachers. The spirit stick was surrendered by the unwilling juniors and given to the seniors.

Presectional Spirit Night

was again held. The night included class competition in the tug-of-war, sack race, free throw shoot, and the junior-senior girls' basketball game. The V-men-Faculty game was also a featured event. After a long, hard struggle, the seniors finally mustered the strength to defeat the juniors, and the faculty barely managed to pull away from the V-men. The juniors were the overall winners of the class competition.

Signs and banners were hung in the halls before the regional. Sophomore Julann Hendricksen puts the finishing touches on one of her creations in an effort to help the sophomore cause.

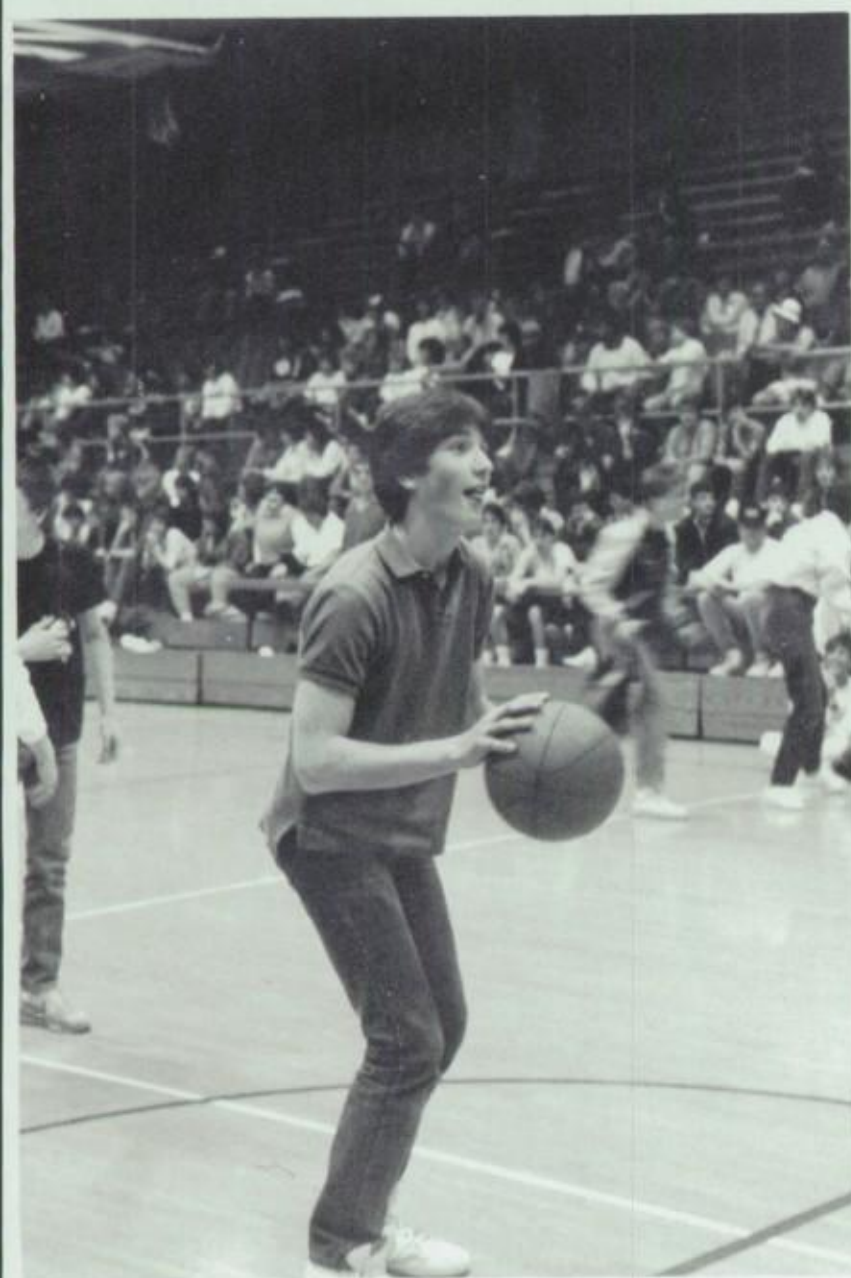

Hawaiian Day seemed to be the most popular day as most students took that opportunity to wear their "Jams". Juniors Andrea Rollins and Lori Stradtner, and sophomore Ann Balthus model their outfits.

Many LHS students and parents gathered at Adams Coliseum to watch the various events at Presectional Spirit Night.

Being "Not-so-tall" has its advantages and disadvantages. Here, senior Roger Brockman gets a boost from Paul Hendrixson, also a senior, so he can dunk the ball prior to the game.

The winning spirit and the crowd support for the V-men was led by Les Warner, Mike Sheren, Rex Robbins, Jason Fithian, and Brian Organ (not shown are Brian Holscher and Brett Davis).

Concentration is all it takes, and freshman Eric Newman does his part for the class of '89 by sinking some baskets in the free throw shoot.

Proudly accepting his academic award from Mr. Pittman, senior Curt Hidde is honored for his achievements.

63 Honored For Academic Achievement

Wagner Finishes with 4.0

One time, in the spring of each year, the students and faculty at LHS take some time to honor the academic achievements of their students. It is called the Academic Awards Banquet and in 1986 was held on April 24 at Washington Elementary School. Sponsored by the student council, the program and dinner began at 6:30 pm.

The Invocation was lead by Mr. Robert Taylor, and then dinner was served. After the guests finished their meal, the actual program began. An introduction and welcome by Mrs. Paula Blythe and Mr. Wayne Ader, respectively, was followed by remarks by Mr. H. Everett Miller, President of VCSC School Board. Other remarks were made by Mr. Kreg Battles, student council sponsor. The presentation of awards was by Mr. James Pittman, LHS Principal and Mrs. Helen Allen and Mrs. Mary Braxton, retiring teachers at Lincoln.

Sophomores, juniors, and seniors were honored at the occasion. The criteria for selection are as follows: sophomores—3.7+, juniors—3.5+, seniors—3.3+. These standards were set by a committee made up of department chairpeople and students appointed by the principal.

Each student was introduced and a list of activities of their high school career was read. Parents were also recognized.

Certificates were handed out. A plaque was awarded to senior Dennis Wagner who was the only senior to finish high school with a perfect 4.0.

Kristi Bowman waits as her list of activities is being read before she goes up to accept her certificate. Kristi's mother listens proudly.

After 3 years of hard work, junior Lesley Stedman accepts her certificate from Mr. Pittman. Names were read by Helen Allen and Mary Braxton.

Junior Beth McAllister laughs as Nick Williams tries to get just a little more air into his balloon.

Steve Yochum puts together the door that was used in the picture booth.

Hammering Away

Building the prom is an adventure undertaken by every junior class. The class of '87 was no exception. Starting early in '86, the planning stages took long hours. Then the building began.

Rocks had to be paper machéd, trees had to be painted, and a bridge had to be built. Unfortunately, that was only the beginning. Blue and silver plastic paper covered the walls around the tables. The dance floor walls boasted blue and white star paper with big white clouds portraying the theme "Stairway to Heaven." White trees were decorated with white Christmas lights, and gossamer was placed around the base of the trees. Candles were on the table in small glass bowls with blue water. Directly over the bridge was an ice sculpture, and there was a fountain in the back of the room.

When it was time to go home juniors were proud of their accomplishments.

by Lesley Stedman

White trees and lights were one of the most impressive parts of the prom. Juniors Andrea Rollins and Lori Stradtner find out that they were also one of the most tedious tasks.

Juniors Jamie Wilson and Ginny Arends hang up the stars above what will eventually be the concession stand by the entry way.

A Night Heaven Sent

As the year draws to a close, there are several things students look forward to, the picnic, graduation, and of course, the prom. Put together by the class of '87, the prom proved again to be beautiful and fun.

The theme was "Stairway to Heaven" which took in the hit song by the same name as well as "Heaven." The theme was illustrated by a stairway from earth to heaven, stars, clouds, and an ice sculpture of doves.

Music was provided for the third year in a row by the band Malachai. They played slow as well as faster songs. Pictures were taken by Creative Images in a picture booth with a lead glass door, trees, and gossamer.

The date was April 25, 1986, and it was held at 8:30 at the Executive Inn. Colors were blue, white, and silver. Memory books were printed by LHS Print Shop and featured a poem by Suzie DeMoss and a drawing by Matt Mutchmore.

After the prom, students gathered at Vincennes University PE Complex for the after-prom sponsored by the parents. Entertainment included a casino, auction, dancing, and bowling. The after-prom concluded at 3:00 am.

Dancing the night away, junior Carey Page enjoys dressing up in a formal and spending the night in elegance.

Relaxing and enjoying the glamour, seniors Bill Marsh and Alicia Blagrove take it easy at the prom.

Replenishing their energy, sophomores Desiree McCrary and Kris Moerdyk sample some of the excellent results of Mr. Purichia's labors.

Too cool for school! A clan of freshmen and sophomores take a rest from the excitement.

Copping some rays while watching an event are seniors Curt Hiddle, Marci Green, and Brent Davison and junior Cindy Like.

Fun in the Sun

Students packed Hillcrest Park on May 4 for another fun and exciting day at the annual school picnic. A beautiful, hot, sunny day was the setting for a welcome break from school studies. Students from all grades attended the event, sponsored by the student council. "It was probably the best picnic since I've been in high school. There were a lot of people, good food, and it was a beautiful day," commented senior Curt Hidde.

The class competition was tough and went right down to the wire. It was all tied up going into the volleyball match, the next to the last event. The seniors came up victors in the game putting them ahead. The last event, the obstacle course, would prove to be the deciding factor. The juniors took first in both the boys' and girls' races to take first place overall.

Mr. Kreg Battles, co-sponsor of the student council, commented, "I would like to thank all those students and faculty for their participation. The school picnic was a true success only due to these people." After the chance for some fun in the sun, hitting the books was just a little easier on Monday morning.

Variety is the Spice of Life

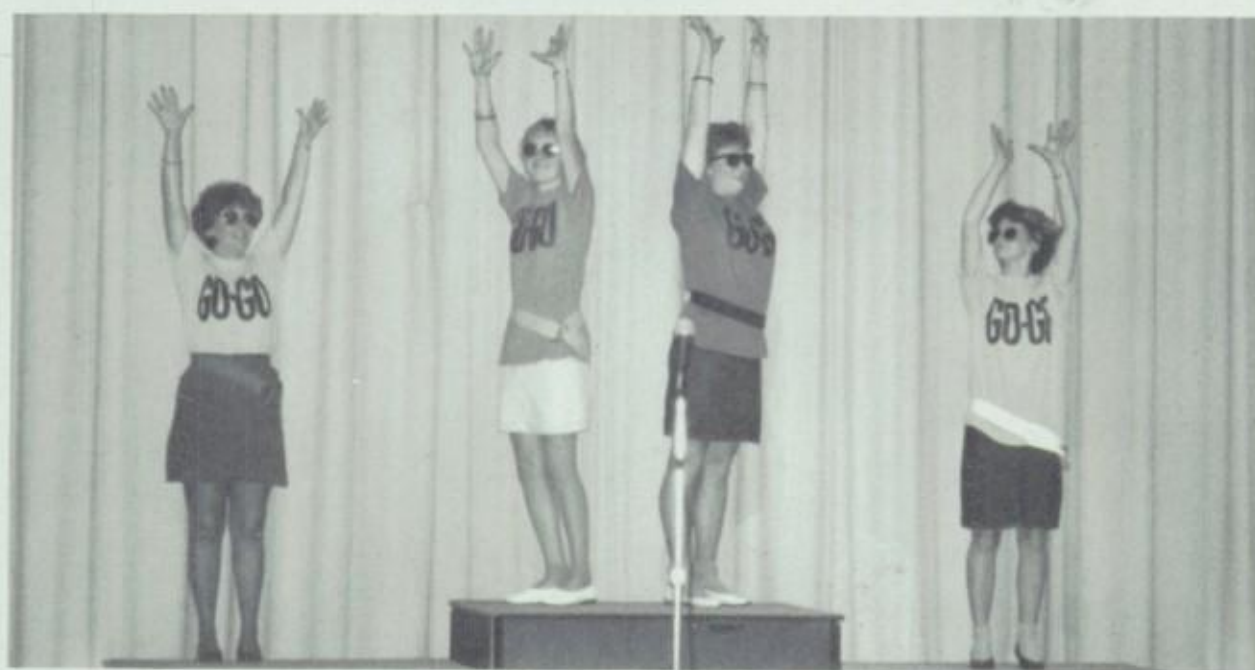

Carrying on tradition, the annual Variety Show was again held in the fall of the year. In addition to the more usual solos and duets always performed at such shows, this performance displayed other talents as well.

Senior Corrie Jordan twirled the baton or batons as it turned out to be. Two instrumental solos were also performed. Junior Todd Montgomery brought life to the crowd while pickin' and grinnin' on the banjo, and another junior Michelle Welton played a trumpet solo with accompaniment by Andrea Rollins on the keyboard. The Junior Civitan Club put together a lip sinc to "Wake Me Up Before You Go-Go" by Wham!. Besides being an accomplished banjo player, Todd Montgomery also entertains by juggling various objects. He displayed this talent to the audience at the show as well.

These acts combined with the beautiful singing proved to easily entertain the crowd that gathered at Clark Auditorium to watch the Fall Variety Show.

Athletics

Volleyball team members Chris Julian, Shelly Brackenbury, Tammy Tolbert, Stephanie Auberry, and Nancy Bilskie anxiously watch as team members battle it out against Rivet. The team had perhaps the best season ever for a volleyball team at Lincoln.

Sophomore Amy Theobald shows us her stuff as she races for the finish. The girls' swimming team finished their third full season.

Run! Run! Run!

"We didn't really have as good a season as we hoped for, but we had a lot of fun, which is the most important thing in sports," commented senior Kenny Obermeyer. The Cross Country Team finished the season with a 30-34 record.

All season the team did not run as well as they had hoped. Finishing last in the conference meet was one of the team's more disappointing performances. Sectionals were also a let down. Although the team placed sixth out of the fifteen teams that competed in the Sectionals, the runners felt they had the ability to do much better.

The two top runners for the Alices, Les Warner and Kenny Obermeyer, received honors for their achievements during the season. Obermeyer received the Legion Award and Warner was listed as the Most Improved Runner.

Despite a disappointing season, the team will have much to look forward to next year. The team will be returning eight of the eleven team members, including top runner Les Warner. Speaking of next year, Coach Ralph Connor stated, "If we work a little harder and take meets more seriously, we will have a great season."

"Getting along," commented Shelly Kramer, was the main attribute for the successful building year of the Lady Cross Country Runners.

Invitationals were a big part of the Lady Alices' season. Although team standings were not terrific, valuable experience was gained by the young team. In conference competition, the runners did manage to place third of eight, their best performance of the season.

Compiling a record of 18 wins and 28 losses, the Lady Alices featured honored runners. Shelly Kramer, a junior and three year letter winner, was chosen All-Conference and Most Valuable Runner. Shelly's determination sparked the runners. Senior Angie Karns, with four letters, was awarded the Legion Award, and Kelli Nidey, a junior with three letters, took honors as the Most Improved Runner.

When individual runners were asked how the season went as a whole, most agreed, "Everyone getting along made the season a blast!"

With all runners returning except Angie Karns, the Lady Alices anticipate a prosperous 1986-87 season.

Experience Gained by Frosh, J.V.

Although the Freshmen Football team did not have a successful record, each player gained valuable experience for future seasons.

Almost beating Jasper (14-20) was the biggest thrill of the season; a 0-0 tie against Gibson Southern was the team's worst moment because the frosh did not get a chance to play over-time.

Overall, the LHS frosh, who played all Conference opponents, ended up at 0-6-1.

Lincoln's Junior Varsity Football team wrapped up the season with a 1-3 record. The only win was a 14-12 decision over Gibson Southern.

Captains of the J.V. were sophomores Keith Burke and Todd Donovan and junior Brian Organ.

Senior Standouts Lead Lincoln

In full stride, Rich Huff takes off in open field for the end zone.

In spite of a season full of injuries, the Alices managed another successful season. Lincoln started off well, but injuries to key players hurt their performance later on in the season.

Lincoln was led by many seniors, such as captains Toby Church, Rich Huff, and Jay Tuttle. Receiving the American Legion Award and Offensive Lineman Award was Brett Bobe, while Greg Stevenson was awarded Defensive Player of the Year. Joining these two on the All-Area Team (Evansville Courier & Press) and All-Conference Team were Huff and Tuttle. Also receiving All-Conference was Church. Tuttle, the kicker, established a new field goal record by booting a 36 yard attempt.

Lincoln began the year with three wins against conference foes: Princeton, Tell City, and Mt. Vernon. After losing to Jasper, the Alices topped two more conference opponents. Finishing up the regular season with two defeats to Boonville and North Knox, Head Coach Joe Purichia stated, "The loss to our county rival was our worst moment."

Overall the Alices closed out the season at five and four. With a five and two record, LHS placed second along with Gibson Southern in the conference standings, behind only Jasper.

A new system for football playoffs was adopted by the IH-SAA for the '85 season. In the years before, a team had to win its cluster in order to advance to the playoffs. Now every team is involved in sectionals. In the first game of sectionals, Lincoln lost a 31-34 heartbreaker to Jasper. Coach Purichia commented, "Our final game against Jasper was a superb effort by a greatly out-manned team. We showed tremendous courage and almost pulled off the biggest upset in a long, long time."

Even though LHS will lose many players to graduation, the '86 Alices have the potential to have a successful football team. If the '86 Alices can avoid the injuries that plagued the '85 team, fans will have the opportunity to see just how good Lincoln football can be.

“Toughest Schedule Yet . . . ”

“This team had to face the toughest schedule to date,” stated Coach Brandon Murphy of the tennis team. Different from any other team at Lincoln, they played Evansville Day School and Bloomington North in dual matches. They faced Jasper in not only one dual match, but two. They also met up with state-ranked Terre Haute North in the Lincoln Invitational.

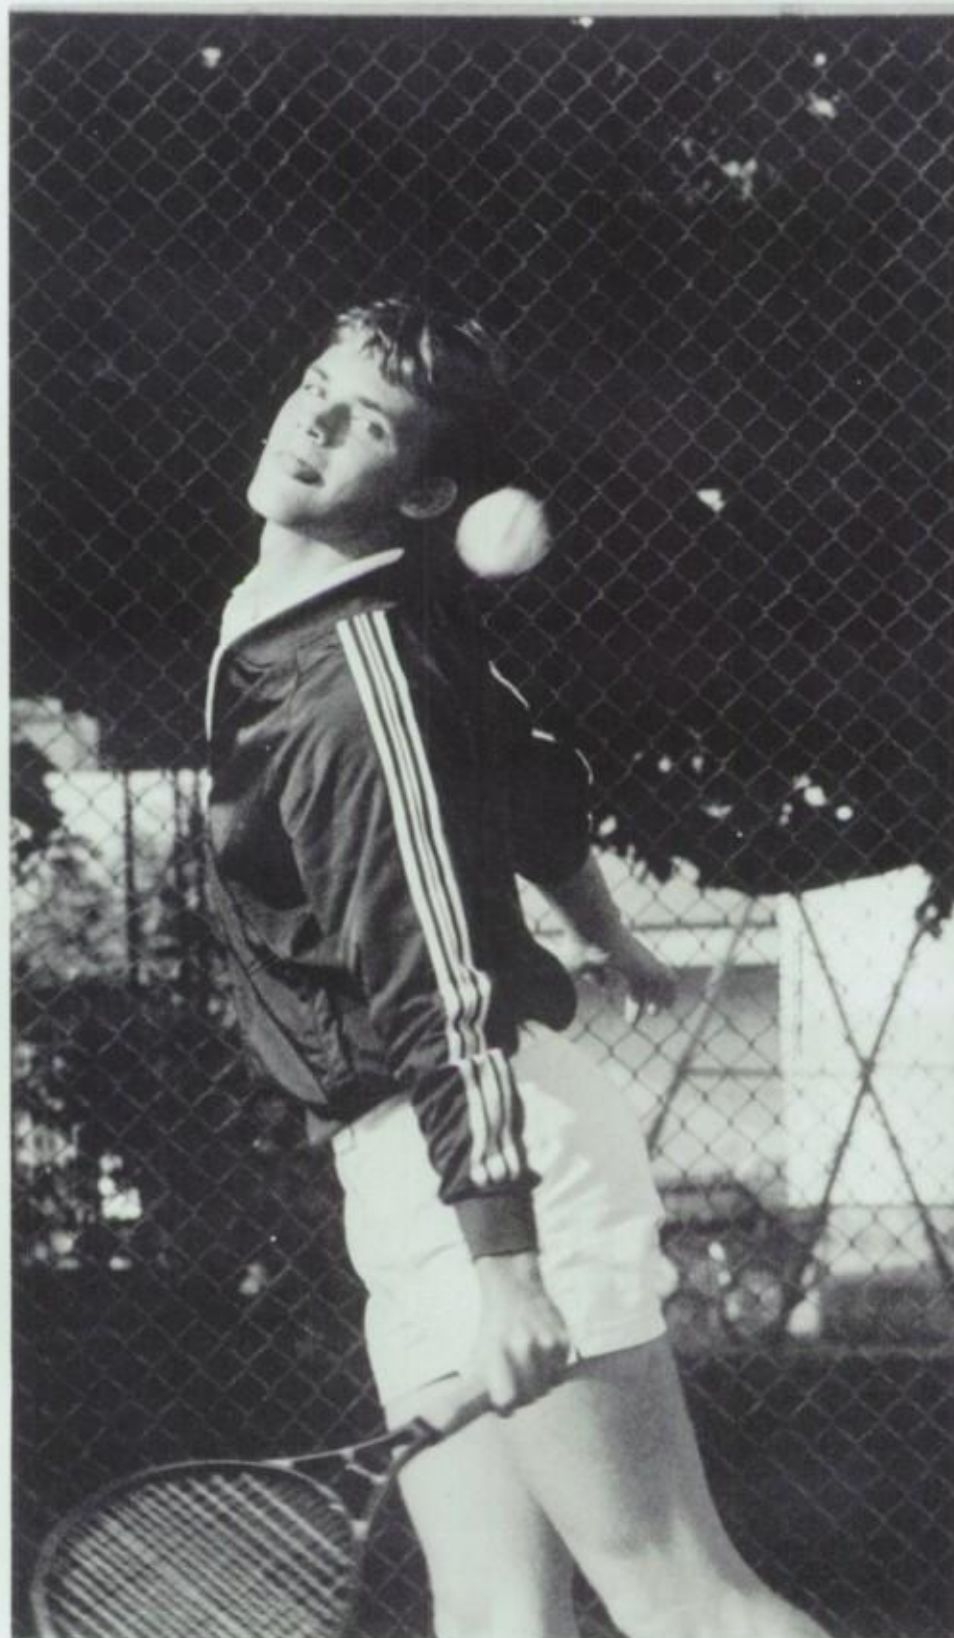

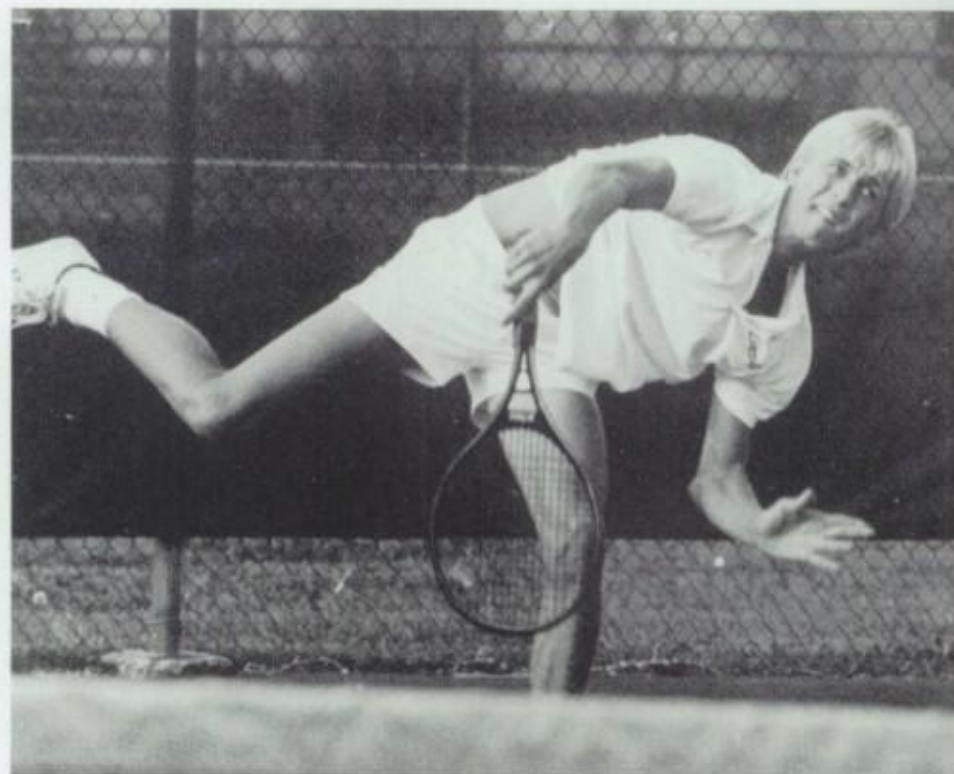

Lincoln’s 6-1 record placed them 2nd in the conference. The Alices attained an overall 13-5 record, finishing runner up in the sectionals to Jasper who went on to finish 2nd in the state tournament.

At the top of the list sits senior Barry Kehl at no. 1 singles. Playing on the other side of the net at no. 1 double were senior Steve Deckard and junior Brett Davis.

Several players on the team earned favorable recognition for themselves. Barry Kehl, Steve Deckard, and senior Jay Pipher were placed on the All-Conference Team. Steve Deckard also received the mental attitude award.

Pride and Spirit Benefit Team

As junior Shelly Brackenbury looks on, junior Nancy Bilskie dives for a ball to send over the net.

This 1985 Lincoln Volleyball Team managed to gain something they hadn't benefited from before, pride and a family spirit. "They are the first team I have coached that did not have internal conflicts. They had a great team attitude and a lot of confidence in each other," commented Coach Paula Westfall. This was Westfall's first year as Head Coach of the Alices. She was assisted by Don Smith, also his first year.

Lincoln was lead by All-Conference senior Melissa Melsheimer. Melissa provided team leadership and was the leading spiker. Much of the team leadership, however, came from one of the two captains, junior Stacey Biehl. Besides her duties as captain, Biehl was the starting setter on the team. In addition to these two outstanding players, Westfall lists all the seniors as Most Valuable Players.

The season record of 17-8 could very well be the best record in the history of LHS Volleyball. "We defeated 3 teams we have not beat in our school's volleyball history," stated Westfall. These teams were Mount Vernon, Barr Reeve, and Gibson Southern. Westfall continued, "The biggest thrill was when we defeated Barr Reeve in regular season. It was the biggest win they could have attained." She concluded that the worst moment was the hard fought defeat in the sectional by Barr Reeve. That was the game that ended the season for the Alices.

Balanced Team Conquers

Comprised of seven sophomores and seven freshmen, the Junior Varsity volleyball team compiled an extremely competitive record of 13 wins and 4 losses for an 82% winning average. The co-captains were Kari Cassity and Julie Brunson.

Coach Don Smith listed sophomores Gina Benson, Kari Cassity and Krista Davison as the teams leading producers backed by sophomore Becky Hendrixson and freshman Dawn Walker. Past coaches had built a strong program with these ladies. The 1985 team showed itself to be tough and able to keep the momentum in its favor.

When asked what made this team different from any other, Coach Smith replied that he felt the girls would make LHS's volleyball team a very competitive one. "Being blessed with such talented ladies made coaching my first girls team a great success," stated Coach Smith.

The 1985-86 Junior Varsity Lincoln Lady Alices were dominated by freshmen on the roster, but the leadership came from the sophomore class. Co-captains for this year were Lori Glass and Angie Bullock.

Kari Cassity achieved several honors including leading rebounder with 100. Sophomore Krista Davison was the leading scorer with 138 points. Lori Glass, another sophomore, was the leading free throw shooter for the team. All three Lady Alices were named Most Valuable Players.

When asked about the biggest thrill for the team during 1985-86 season, Coach Westfall mentioned defeating all of the Knox County teams and hitting a respectable 65% from the free throw line. Perhaps these helped the team to have another winning season.

The Lady Alices accomplished many goals and received much recognition during the season. Bill Powell was the varsity coach along with Paula Westfall as the assistant. Coach Powell stated, "They played a lot better than what people expected."

The season record went as 15-7, leaving the conference record as 4-3. Junior Stacey Biehl lead the team not only in scoring but in assists as well. Leading rebounder was sophomore Donetta Lucas.

Freshmen Set A Winning Pace

"In like a lamb, out like a lion" more-or-less describes the overlook of the '85-'86 boys' varsity season. Internal discipline problems began the season on a shaky note as the team won only one of its first three games. Yet the senior dominated team, led by captains Brent Davison and Paul Hendrixson, quickly overcame the deficit through strong leadership and teamwork, closing on a 21-6 mark.

With the return of three starters, the team quickly shut out county rival South Knox with little difficulty in the season's opener. With the next two games, team members found themselves on the opposite side of the tracks, as North Knox and Boonville felt the thrill of victory. Because of the conference blow from the Pioneers and another from Jasper, Lincoln settled behind Boonville for the Big 8 title, tying two other conference teams with a 5-2 record in the slot for second place.

Paul Hendrixson, along with classmates Barry Kehl and Chad Reitmeyer were selected for the All State Honorable Mention list. Sophomore sensation, Rusty Johnson also received state recognition as he sunk a '85-'86 record high of 94% from the charity stripe.

"Especially with the last fourteen games, we showed the fans that this team was capable of playing good basketball," commented five-year head coach Gene Miller. Without a doubt, the '85-'86 varsity squad did its part in upholding the Lincoln tradition of "good basketball." From the agony of defeat, to the thrill of victory over traditionally dominate Evansville Bosse and a much improved Vincennes Rivet, loyal Alice fans were never disappointed by their "boys" in green."

Wrestlers Match Up

Many of things contributed to the success of the Lincoln wrestling team. The wrestlers put in many strenuous hours but were also blessed with a very experienced squad.

"Many of our wrestlers now have junior high experience. We are now competitive with most southwestern Indiana teams," commented Coach Don Smith.

Receiving the Wrestler of the Year and the Kiwanis Awards was senior Brett Bobe. Senior John Yochum, along with Bobe, was named to the All Big 8 Conference team. Participating at semi-state were co-captains Bobe and senior Curt Hidde. At the Heavyweight spot, Bobe set a record with most points in two seasons (302) and most pins in one, two, and three years.

The Alices won 14 matches while only losing four. LHS also captured the Washington Invitational and the North Knox Sectional. In the final Big 8 Conference standings, LHS ended up fourth.

Wading Through A Successful Season

After the third consecutive year of competition for the girls' swim team, its record has flourished. The eight and four record was a great improvement on last year's five and ten record. The losses resulted from the small number of girls participating, even though this was the largest team yet.

Team captains Sarah Luse, Janis Groh and Gretchen Doolittle brought out the team's athletic ability and willingness to work that gave the girls their success. With the help of divers Gretchen Doolittle and Jodi Hippensteel, the team placed third in the Big 8 Conference and in sectionals. Jenita Page, participating as the only senior, also was a major factor in the winning season.

The team's experience and depth showed in the All Conference choices and State finalists. Janis Groh, Polly Luse, Sarah Luse and Jenny Tuttle were chosen for All Conference. The State finalists were Janis, Polly, Sarah, Jenny and Jennifer Fox.

The loss to Mt. Vernon was a major disappointment to the team; however, winning eight meets and going to the State finals made up for the defeat. When asked about the season, Coach Jon Luse commented, "The team performed well even though there were many good teams in Southern Indiana, which was proved by the fast sectional times."

The outlook for next year's team is promising, since only one senior will be lost.

Boys Make A Splash

Lincoln's first boys' swim team ended its season with a 2-3 record and came in 9th out of 13 teams in sectionals. This year was basically a foundation-building year with responsibilities placed mostly on the shoulders of Captain Glenn Bobe, along with Dwayne Deckard, Troy Frisz, and Ned Zimmer.

In the meets the team lost, it competed against swim teams that had more swimmers. Expectantly, the meets won were against teams of about the same size. Having no home meets made the schedule even harder. To compensate for these disadvantages, the team practiced everyday an hour before school.

The early hours of practice put in paid off when the swimmers won their first meet against Tecumseh. The worst moment, though, was being tromped by Terre Haute South.

Dwayne Deckard made the Big 8 Conference Swim Team and received the MVP award for the swim team at the winter sports banquet. Deckard also broke two pool records at Tecumseh in the 500m freestyle

Golfers Find It Rough

"Competitiveness and team loyalty among the players attributed to the success of the golf team," commented Coach Ray Mills. Lincoln ended up with a 33-25 record, while coming in second in the Big Eight Conference. "We played well in our first match of the season," said Mills, which enabled the golfers to capture the County Open.

All matches this season were played by the same six senior golfers: (1) Curt Hidde, (2) Roger Brockman, (3) Rob Southwood, (4) Rob Koontz, (5) Bruce Nall, and (6) Eric Friedman. Named as the most valuable player was Hidde. Brockman made the All-Conference team.

Lincoln finished its season coming in fifth in the sectional. Mills remarked, "Not qualifying for regionals was our worst moment of the year."

Injuries Costly

In spite of an injury-laden season, the boys' track team managed a few accomplishments. Only 1-3 in dual meets, it would appear that the team had an unimpressive season. Fourth and fifth place finishes in the Princeton and Pike Central Invationals would only seem to confirm that assumption. However, those facts only tell part of the story.

Perhaps partly responsible for the mediocre season was the absence of the two best performers, according to Assistant Coach Kreg Battles. Greg Stevenson and Rich Huff, both seniors, missed most of the season because of injuries. Battles added that senior Craig Arnold's dedication and determination helped to take up some slack.

Next season, the team will be looking to better its eighth place Varsity Conference finish; keeping the team injury-free will be a step in the right direction.

During the 1986 season, the girls' track team set some standards to strive for in future seasons. Second and sixth place finishes in the North Knox and Mt. Vernon Invitationals respectively and a 3-3 record in dual meets were respectable; however, it was in individual performances that the girls proved themselves.

Seven girls qualified for the sectionals in six events. In discus Angie Hatcher and Angie Crockett qualified, while Crockett also qualified in shotput. Dawn Walker and Nellie Jaquess qualified for the long jump. Jaquess also competed in the 300m hurdles, and Teresa Goff made it to the sectionals in the 800m run. Rounding out the sectional team were Shelley Kramer, Susan Mincey, Walker, and Jaquess in the 1600m relay.

vanced beyond sectionals to compete at the state level, marking Lincoln's first appearance in a state meet since 1982. Jaquess competed in the 300m hurdles, and Hatcher represented Lincoln in the discus. Of her experience at the state meet, Jaquess commented that the stiff competition was somewhat frightening. However, a glance at the record books shows that both girls were state-level contenders. Hatcher set a school record of 120 ft. in the discus throw; Jaquess set a conference record in the 300m hurdles and was named All-Conference in both the 100 and 300m hurdles. She was also named the team's MVP for the season.

In spite of all the positives for the girls, there were setbacks. Perhaps the most significant was the cancellation of not one but two meets because of inclement weather. According to Assistant Coach Ralph Connor, the girls missed valuable opportunities to compete and test themselves against other competitors. Perhaps these cancellations also played a part in the fifth place conference standing the team achieved. However, even these disappointments were not enough to darken the achievements of this state-bound team; also, with several girls returning, there is much to anticipate next season.

Playing tennis is a lot of hard work but it's also fun as junior Nancy Bilskie demonstrates.

Sectional Hopes Crushed

After a few line-up changes early in the season the tennis team came back to earn a twelve and seven record. The team lost players to injury and ineligibility but they fought back using competitiveness and high skill level as their main weapons.

Most Valuable Player Nancy Nossett won the Big 8 Conference in her division of number one singles, something that no other girl from Lincoln has done. Nancy also served as the team captain.

The team got off to a slow start in their opening match against Jasper and went on to win only one match out of the next four. The girls came back to win the next eight consecutive matches, beating many of the Big 8 Conference members. Their league record was established at six and one and they cruised through Big 8 finishing second behind Jasper. They continued on into Sectionals, where they felt confident of victory. They were awarded a spot in the finals against Princeton but they couldn't quite pull it off for their fourth consecutive Sectional title.

Since the team is young and only one senior will be lost, the '86-'87 season is sure to be a success, so Princeton and Jasper had better watch out.

Sliding into Tradition

After rebuilding the squads last year, both the J.V. and Varsity teams showed much improvement. First year coach Ken Alumbaugh led his J.V. team to an impressive 10-4-1 record while the more experienced Varsity lineup ended at 14-10 under the direction of veteran coach Jack Cook.

Both coaches credited the success to hard work and balanced team effort, but emphasized several key players. Leading the J.V. were sophomores Brad Jewel, Todd Donovan, and Rodney Rinnert, and juniors Kevin Greenwood and Derek Parker, while the Varsity spotlighted seniors Brian Boger, Clif Nordhorn, and junior Derek Parker. Parker was also named to the All Conference team while Nordhorn was given honorable mention.

Glancing toward next year, it is without doubt that the skill and leadership of the eight seniors will be missed, but the remaining juniors and a fine junior varsity squad may make successful Lincoln baseball a tradition.

Cheerleading: An All Year Sport

"Cheerleaders work harder all year than most people think," stated cheerleading coach Mrs. Debbie Miiller. Each squad cheered an average of 36 times from the end of August to the middle of March. Although the cheerleaders have a couple of weeks off between seasons and at Christmas time, it is not unusual for them to be cheering four to five nights a week.

All three squads of cheerleaders and the two cheer coaches, Debbie Miiller and Linda Hackney, attended the I.C.C. Indiana Cheer Camp at Depauw University in June.

Freshman Debbie Murphy shows dedication for her team on even the coldest nights.

Observing the crowd, Angie Zanetis seems to think that this one will last forever.

The camp had 998 cheerleaders attending from Indiana schools. They also attended a one day clinic at I.U. in November. They received much individual assistance. They learned several new cheers, chants, and one dance routine. All three squads won in their evaluation, and Becky Willis was named the "Most Enthusiastic Cheerleader."

In the fall the cheerleaders sponsored an elementary cheer clinic for grades three through eight at Tecumseh Harrison Gymnasium. They had a record attendance of 117. The future yell leaders were taught cheers, chants, partner stunts, and sideline dances.

Mrs. Miiller commented that they must have several projects throughout the year. The cheerleaders are totally responsible for the uniforms, clinic fees, alterations, one-half their camp fee, and anything they do for the teams, such as baking cookies and decorating locker rooms and cars.

The three varsity cheerleaders that will be moving on are: Stephanie Ziemer, Angie Zanetis, and Monica Chattin. Monica Chattin was selected as Most Valuable Cheerleader at the American Legion Sport Banquet.

The cheerleaders worked extremely hard and once again had a successful season.

ECA Valuable

Many people consider extracurricular activities a diversion from academics. However, extracurricular activities help students develop qualities not emphasized in classrooms.

Cooperation and leadership are emphasized in extracurricular activities but not in classrooms. A student can excel in a classroom; however, because he works alone, he never has to develop cooperation skills. A member of a club or athletic team, though, must work with the other members. Leadership, also not emphasized in a classroom, must be exercised in clubs for them to succeed.

Clearly, extracurricular activities play a valuable role in the educational process.

corresponding to Trivial Pursuit, with questions pertaining to classical literature. Students who chose to take Creative Writing also found it to be far from the old, boring English class. Creative Writing gave pupils a chance to interview authors as well as go to the art room to write about a specific piece of art. Term papers were also a break from the old teaching methods. Senior Composition classes spent the last nine weeks of each semester writing the 2000-word term papers. For most students this was the first fully documented research paper they had written.

No longer is English class dull and uninspired. Students are now able to enjoy English class while they learn.

Dreading English class is no longer a worry for Lincoln High School students. English teachers have employed new methods and activities to make English a more interesting and enjoyable subject.

Numbers Up

When a person thinks of math, like the majority of American high school students, he probably thinks of chalkboards, paper, pencils, and a big thick book of math problems to last the entire year. Along with all the physical images come the mental images as well, such as headaches and that most common exclamation of frustration: I can't do it! However, if a student looks around the room nowadays he will notice items other than the usual materials. In one area hangs a bulletin board with information about colleges and the latest requirements concerning math in the high schools. Bulletin boards of this type are only one of the new, interesting features of math classes at Lincoln.

Juniors and seniors who are planning to continue their mathematics spectrum took a field trip, chaperoned by Mr. Case, to Indiana State University. The presentation dealt with those careers that require further mathematical studies such as aviation, engineering and electronics.

In addition to field trips there have also been guest speakers. Dr. Kellams, a professor from I.S.U., visited Mr. Cases trigonometry class. He enlightened the class by relaying his philosophies of the higher mathematics.

The mathematics department is developing more and more every day for the better. Computers are growing throughout the mathematics department as well. Hopefully with all of these added extras, more and more students will strive for more than what is required in math.

"Mathematics has presented a challenge, not always prevalent in my other classes. I enjoy the work and the thought that goes behind it."

Fun With Science

Lincoln High School students discovered that science can be fun. From casual study to meticulous lab work, students found enjoyment in science classes.

An addition to the science curriculum was General Science, taught by Mr. Goodman.

The course was created to increase the options of students interested in science. Always an interesting experience, the dissection of sharks and other species broadened students' knowledge of the interaction between different body systems. Upperclassmen abandoned the studies of biological sciences and turned toward the more mathematical side of science, such as physics and chemistry. The second semester of Advanced Chemistry is devoted to laboratory work only. This gives students a chance to experience laboratory work before college.

With variety of courses offered and the diverse methods of teaching used, each student should find something of interest in the Lincoln Science Department.

Study Of A History Made

While the students of Lincoln made their own history, such as causing the Jams craze at basketball tourney time, they had to study history made centuries or only months ago.

Though history is now categorized as social studies, history is still the basis of study. The only difference now is that the history studied is of a variety of areas, not just of America or the world. Some of the classes offered cover the political changes of the United States, cultural evolutions, art, literature, economic practices, and psychological theories and advances.

With all of the diverse classes offered at Lincoln studying history never gets old.

The Life of Business

Lincoln High School offers a wide variety of business courses to prepare students for college. The variety ranges from the basic Keyboarding I to the more advanced classes such as Intensive Office Procedures and Advanced Computers. Many basic classes such as Keyboarding, Introduction to Business, and Beginning Shorthand deal with preparing students to advance to more difficult classes in specific areas.

Classes such as Marketing, Recordkeeping, and Accounting give students a taste of future careers. Office Procedures and Intensive Office classes give students the experience and taste of the way a career in an office would be like. In the Intensive Office Lab, every student has her own desk, typewriter, and other business equipment.

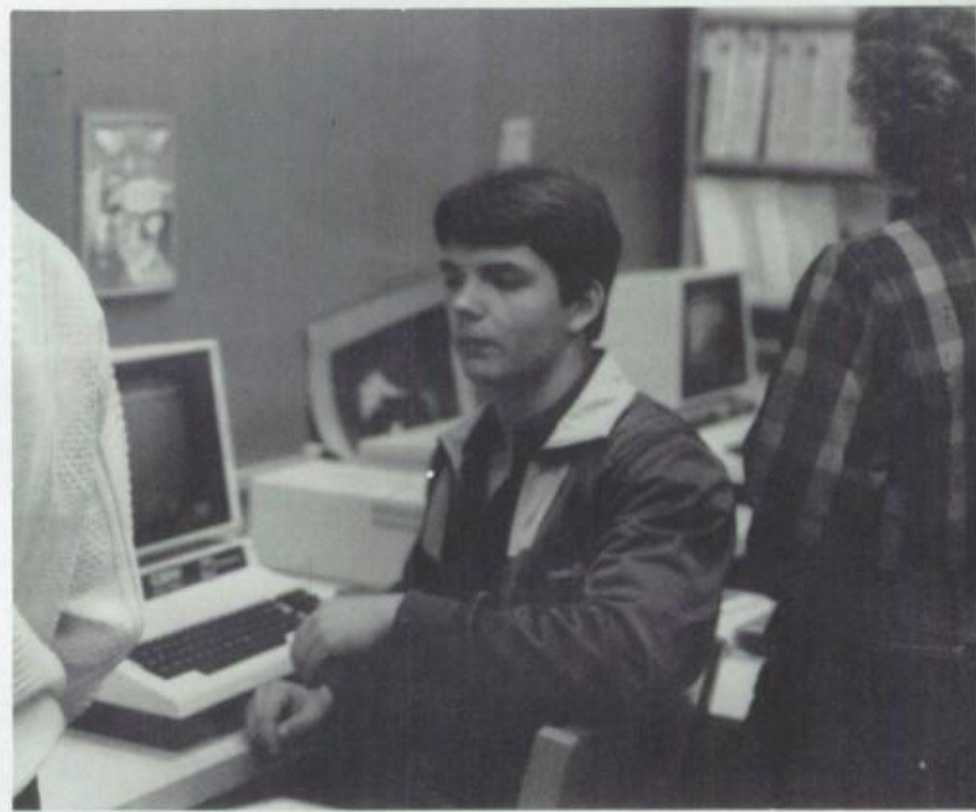

Computers, becoming more and more important, are popular classes nowadays. Students start with Basic Computers and programming, word processing, and valuable information needed to exist in the future. Advanced Computers classes do more advanced and difficult programming.

Business classes are important, for they teach a person how to survive in a world of money. Money is exchanged at such a rapid rate that people have to be up on figures and such. Knowing how to handle money and figures is important, and business classes are available and ready to be taken advantage of.

Language Plus

Foreign language class isn't just learning a new language. Many other things go along with the class.

In many cases, students gained first hand experience by one to one interaction with foreign cultures. During the summer, several people hosted stu-ticipated in the Vincennes University Foreign Language Fair.

All those at Lincoln not only receive the class knowledge, but also get outside experience in their foreign language, and it is this type of experience that helps the students to remember what they have learned.

Courses Add Variety

The Home Economics department is dedicated to the art of home management and family care. Other than the traditional home economics courses of Personal Living, Foods and Nutrition, and Clothing and Textiles, the department offers Family Management, Parenthood and Child Development to add variety.

The classes that the Home Economics department teach are informative and helpful for the future. More students are taking advantage of these classes, as the number of students enrolled keeps growing. Some of the most popular classes are Family Management and Parenthood Education for the guys. The most popular for the girls are Personal Living and Consumer Buying.

Many careers can come from the classes being offered: Child Development classes can lead into nursing homes, nursing, and child care careers. Foods and Nutrition can lead into fields such as dietetics, waitressing, and short order cooking.

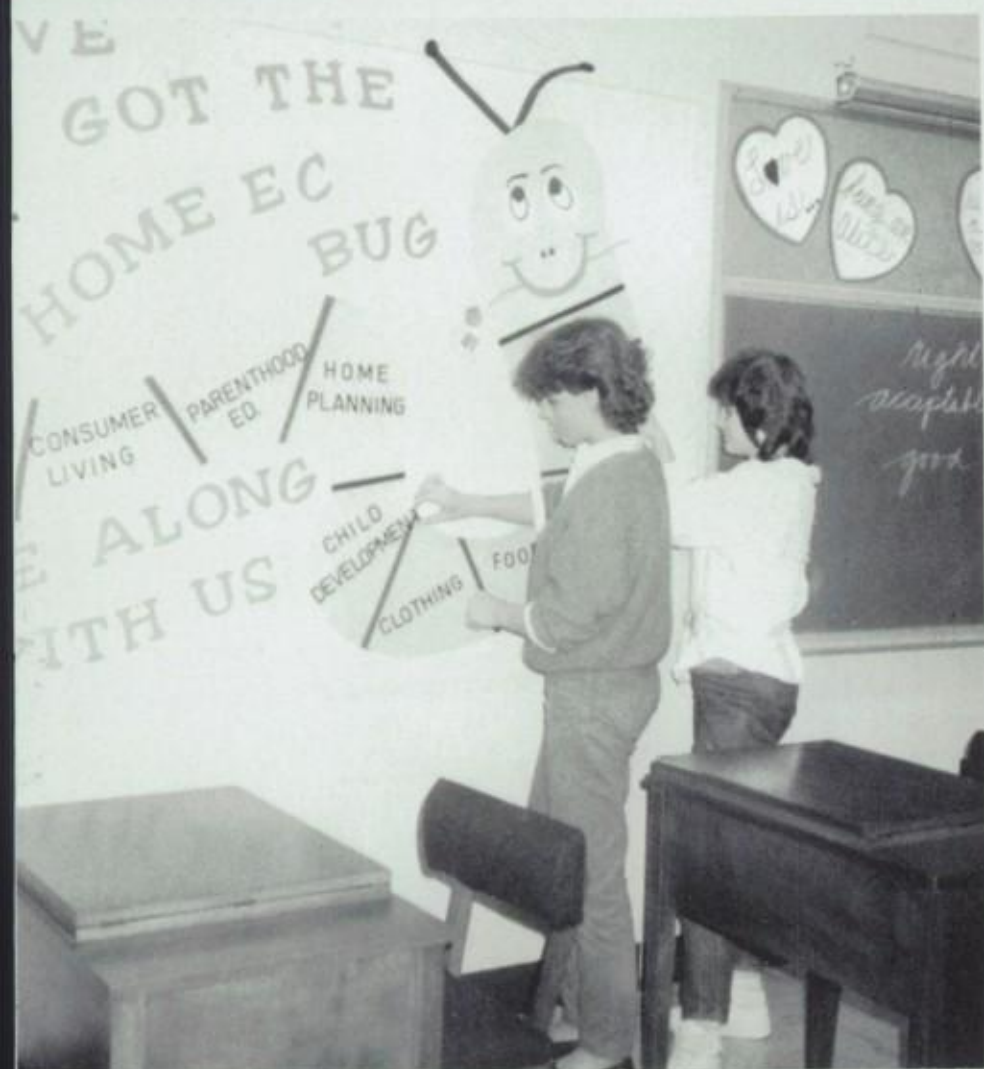

The Home Economics courses taught at Lincoln have a positive effect on a person and can always be useful.

On a Good Note

Under the direction of a new teacher, the Lincoln High School Choir had an active year. Mark Snyder who formally was a student teacher at Terre Haute North, was hired this summer to direct the LHS choirs.

The choral department held several concerts throughout the year. The Christmas concert was held at Shircliff Theater while the others were at Clark Jr. High. All the groups, including the Celebration Singers, Girls'

Choir, Mixed Choir, and Girls' Prep Choir performed at the concerts. In addition, they performed at the Spring Festival at North Knox. The Mixed Choirs and Celebration Singers also were privileged to sing at the Memorial for the George Rogers Clark dedication.

As Mr. Snyder gets a better feel for Lincoln and the choirs grow and mature, they look forward to an even better year in 1987.

The combined choirs at the Spring Concert perform for the crowd. In addition to the LHS choirs, the junior high students performed, also. They are on the ends of the group.

Celebration Singers Suzette Koch, Dawn McAllister, Sherri Ell, Gayle McCoy, and Barb Bonhomme ride in the Christmas parade singing to those along the route.

Mark Snyder directs the Girls' Prep Choir during the Spring Concert. They were only one of several groups to perform that night.

Choir members practice for weeks before they actually perform. Jill Robbins, Annjeanette Madison, Christine Sturks, and Mindy Barton work during Mixed Choir Practice.

The Pride of the Green

The Band Department at LHS has a great deal to offer interested musicians. Among the many different types of bands are Concert Band, Wind Ensemble, Jazz Ensemble, Freshman Band, and Marching Band.

The Concert Band, taught by Mr. Warmuth, consists of sophomores and juniors. They participate in local concerts throughout the year. The Wind Ensemble, also taught by Mr. Warmuth, consists of sophomores, juniors, and seniors.

The Jazz Ensemble is only open to those who audition. Under the guidance of Mr. Dougherty, the Jazz Ensemble took a tour of the area schools, and also earned a prestigious first division rating in the state contest. Mr. Dougherty also offers a theory class, composed of juniors and seniors.

The freshman band, led by Miss Cooper and Mr. Dougherty, sets a solid foundation for the musical future of these students.

Senior Tracey Sellers shows intense concentration as she displays her musical talent.

Last but not least is the marching band. A combination of the Wind Ensemble, Concert Band, Freshman Band, and an auxiliary unit, this band is the largest. Students in marching band participated in five contests, advancing from district to regional competition. However, mud hindered their progression to the state level of competition.

The LHS Band Department has once again proven to be the Pride of the Green.

The Arts of Skill

There is a variety of industrial arts classes offered at Lincoln. Vocational auto lasts for three hours a day and is offered to juniors and seniors. Power auto, another class for juniors and seniors, deals with small engines such as lawn mowers and chain saws. The auto class works strictly on automobiles. This class is usually small, considering it is only offered to seniors.

Besides auto classes, students have other options. Students in Mechanic Brad Ryder explains the complications of fixing his stereo system to Bob Kiger.

Art Expands

In addition to the usual projects done in the two-dimensional and three-dimensional art classes such as drawing, painting, printmaking, woodworking, clay and jewelry, the department has slowly been expanding to accomodate the increasing enrollment of students.

The three-dimensional department has added another kickwheel and new belt disc sander to the room, enabling each student more time to himself on the wheel and the capacity to do larger wood sculptures.

Besides doing just their own work, students are given the chance to view the works of other artists. The advanced classes took a field trip to the Indianapolis Museum of Art and the Indianapolis Children's Museum to view "The Art of the Muppets." Also, several trips were taken to Vincennes University to see the work of local artists, traveling exhibits, and the work of Vincennes Univer-

In addition to the display case outside the artroom, the Media Center started displaying student work, giving the entire school a chance to view the talent of the students in the art department.

Putting on the finishing touches, as senior Brad Ryder and junior Byron Kacheris know, is always the most important part.

Health/PE Shape Up

Health and Safety and Physical Education provide students with more than the typical "book learning" type of class activity. These classes give students the opportunity to exercise more than just their minds.

The different courses offered are: Health and Safety, Substance Abuse, Girls PE, Boys PE, and Advanced PE.

The PE classes try to put much of their emphasis on fitness but because of the flu epidemic, not as many students have been able to keep up with the regular pace.

Many things in the department have remained the same except that the Girls PE class has included bowling tournaments in their list of activities to give the class more of a variation.

All eyes are on the ball as the players try to return the volley.

"Who's turn is it?" argue the Girls PE Class at Fort Sackville Bowling.

Delivering On Schedule

Unlike in other courses, students' work in newspaper and yearbook journalism is subject to community approval. Consequently, the staffs of the publications must learn to cooperate and be responsible.

Probably few readers of the OPS realized the effort required to put those four pages together each week. With Advisor Mike Hutchison and senior Co-editors Dennis Wagner and Doug Meinhart overseeing, staff members strove to make weekly deadlines. The staff usually spent Friday afternoons in Room 103 scrutinizing the paper. However, even this experience was rushed; the next issue was always less than a week away.

Being a member of the Lincoln Log staff required the same responsibility and cooperation. After an intense, two week workshop at IU, junior Co-editors Lesley Stedman and Jennifer Fox assumed much of the responsibility. From planning the book, to checking each page submitted, to assisting first-year Advisor Steve Toy, the two girls paced the staff to meet each of the six deadlines. Dedicated staff members sacrificed summer afternoons to make sure two final deadlines in June were met. The staff mailed the last shipment with the satisfaction that not only had they met all deadlines, but they had also assembled a book of which they could be proud.

Clearly, in the journalism courses, students work hard to create a product that is sold to the public. Because the consumer demands satisfaction, the publications courses involve a pressure and responsibility unique among courses at Lincoln.

Printing pictures takes much practice but it seems that senior Dennis Wagner has the technique down pat.

Discussing the events that they are to report keeps junior Keith Fisher and seniors Sandy Stiles and Christy Sutton busy.

Working on the senior section of the yearbook doesn't put a smile on senior Jana Wirth's face.

Juniors Becky Willis and Jennifer Fox make the final adjustments on the freshman gallery as Janis Groh, also a junior, observes their accomplishments.

Senior Rich Huff gives us that famous grin. Rich participated in a Foreign Language Club event. The students went to the city grade schools to teach the kids about languages.

The rec center was a popular place at lunch hour. Eric Friedman, senior, doesn't seem very happy on this particular day.

Senior Tim Goodwin delights good friend Susan Tromley with her Kangaroo Court sentence. Court is an annual part of band camp.

Seniors

The class of 1986 began their senior year knowing that it was their last year. What they did not realize until graduation approached was that the environment they had grown used to over the past four years was going to end. With this new awakening came many different feelings. Some felt happiness, while others felt sadness; some felt fear of the future, and others anticipated it. All of them knew their high school days were drawing to a close, and accompanying this realization was the fond reminiscence of times past.

As freshmen they were new to the high school scene, but they did not let their low rank hamper their goals and abilities. They succeeded in being the first ninth grade class ever to win the homecoming float competition with a Pac Man theme. They rounded out their accomplishments by having three classmates on the junior varsity basketball team and one on the varsity squad.

During their sophomore year, they gained more respect from other students and themselves. They returned to the float competition as veterans and pulled out another first place with a magical unicorn theme. They ordered class rings to commemorate their days at Lincoln, took a variety of classes such as speech, typing, or a foreign language, and many of them acquired driver's licenses. However, the most outstanding event of their tenth grade year had to be witnessing the basketball team, of which four classmates were members, travel to the state finals and emerge as the runners-up.

Many changes were made and endured during their junior year. They accepted more responsibilities and privileges, while dealing with the disappointment of having no clubs or pep sessions during school time. Independent study halls were eliminated, causing many upperclassmen to take full class loads. Their time at home basketball games was spent selling refreshments instead of cheering and watching. The sacrifice was worth it, because they earned the money necessary to build the prom. They broke another tradition by holding the prom, "Almost Paradise," at the Executive Inn. They closed their junior year with great anticipation of their senior year.

Their first big event as a senior was that of getting senior portraits taken. Next was sliding through those SAT examinations. College choices had to be made, and they had to start mapping out futures, starting with graduation and senior trips, of course. Filling out applications—both employment applications and financial aid applications—became second nature. Senior keys were purchased and worn constantly as everyone searched for a way to hold on to the moment.

Thanks need to be said to all who helped the class along their journey: the class sponsors, class officers, teachers, administrators, student council, and many others. The high school days may be over, but they are times to remember, and the class of 1986 will make them last forever by keeping the memories inside their hearts.

Breakfast Tradition Continues

Seniors dragged themselves out of bed early in the morning for one last time on Thursday, May 22, for the annual Senior Breakfast which began at 7:30 at the Holiday Inn. The breakfast not only gave seniors a chance to reminisce over their high school years, but also a chance to get together as a class for one last time before they became Lincoln High School graduates. Familiar faces, along with the delicious food, created a warm atmosphere for the Class of 86. After replenishing their energy, the seniors were ready to proceed to Adams Coliseum for commencement practice. by John Cooper

Cliff Nordhorn enjoys the variety of foods available to the seniors.

Laughing over good times, Theresa Opell, Katherine Althoff, Susan Tromley, and Sandy Stiles discuss their plans for senior trips.

Crowding the buffet line, seniors fill their plates before gathering at the coliseum for commencement practice.

Farewell Class of '86

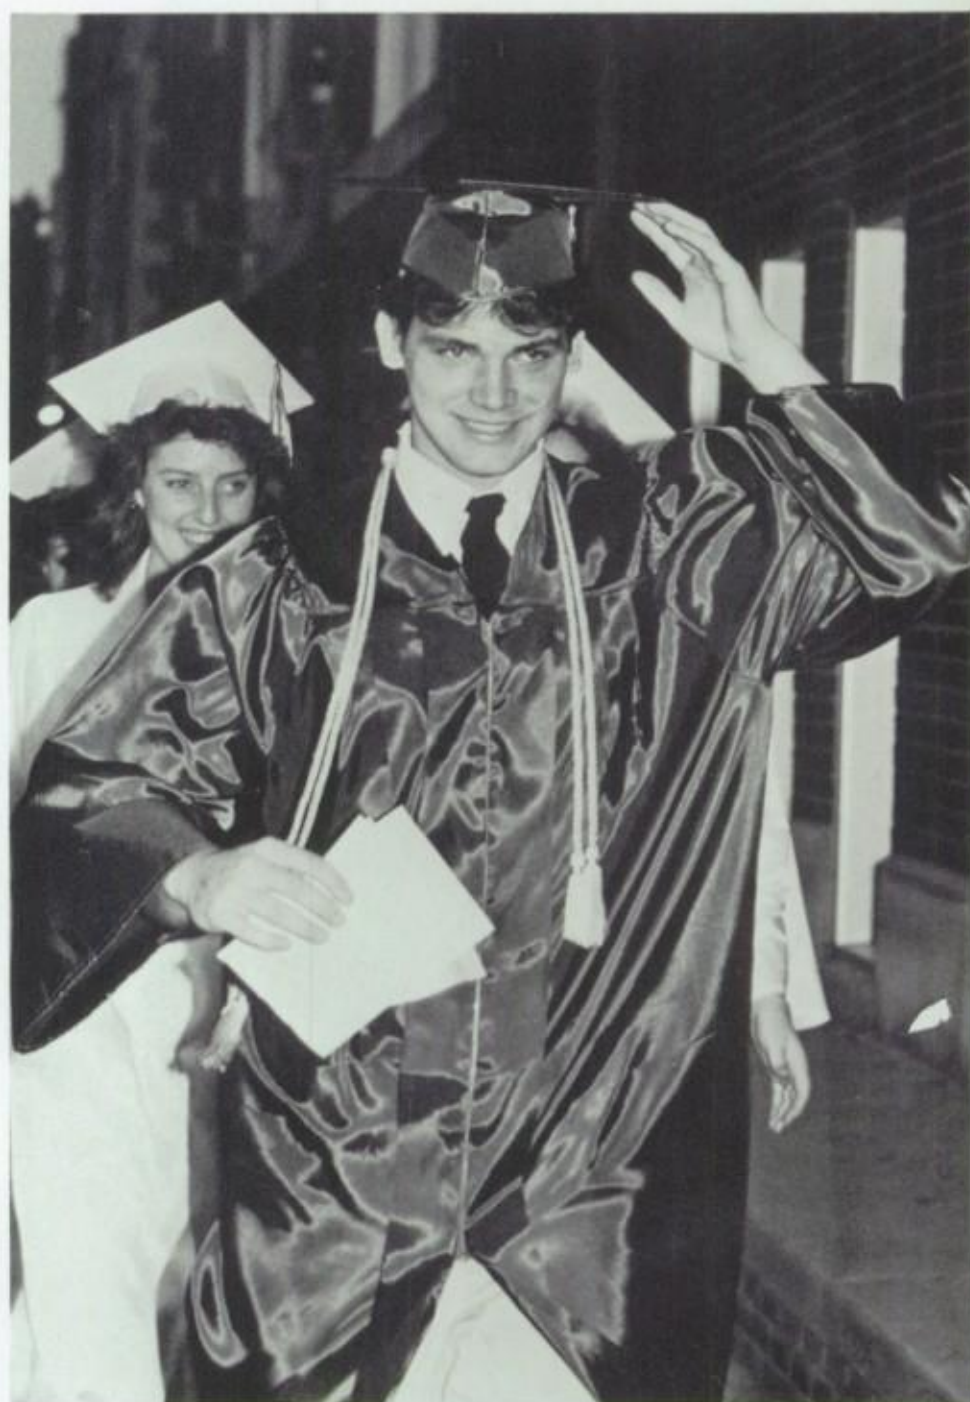

It's 8:00p.m. on Friday May 23rd. Excitement filled Adams Coliseum. The 113th annual commencement exercise honored the class of 1986. The Processional March, played by the Concert Band, marked the beginning of the end for these seniors. Junior class President and Vice-President, Roby Wilson and Kristi Turner preceded the seniors in their entrance. Secretary of the class, Chris Julian then gave the Invocation. The Combined Choirs, under the direction of Mr. Mark Snyder, followed with Time Goes On (Love Theme from St. Elmo's Fire). Mr. James Pittman, principal, gave the introduction. The theme "As Time Goes On" was represented by the four chosen speakers. "The Time Has Arrived" was delivered by Class President Tom Hatcher, Stephanie Ziemer spoke of "A Time of Challenge," Karla Settlemyre delivered "Times To Cherish" and "A Time for the Future" was given by Corrie Jordan. The Concert Band with senior trumpet soloists David Kixmiller, Bill Marsh, Mike Stewart and Tom Tate played Through the Years. Class Treasurer, Gail McCoy made the Introduction of Honor Students and Mr. Pittman presented the class. Superintendent of Community Schools Mr. Wayne E. Ader and Mr. H. Everett Miller, Board of School Trustees President, presented the diplomas to the seniors. The Benediction was delivered by Class Vice-President Steve Deckard. The Concert Band closed the ceremony with the Recessional.

Holding on to his cap, as he will soon be holding on to high school memories, Steve Deckard makes the journey to the coliseum for the ceremony.

Checking over her commencement prayer brings a smile to Chris Jullian's face and a curious look from Corrie Jordan.

Tanya Kiener and Rob Koontz seem to share a private joke about David Kixmiller's late arrival.

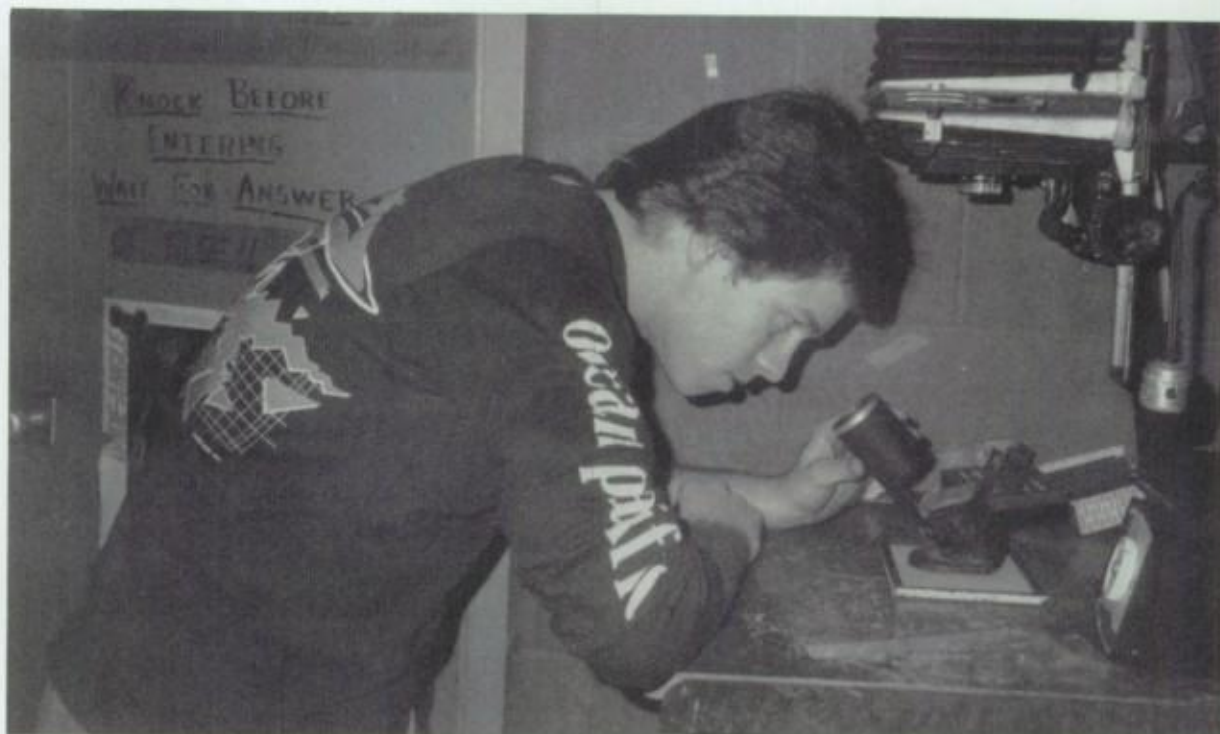

We finally made it!! Mark Hendricksen and Rich Huff spare no shows of emotion at the end of four long, hard years.

Old friends Rob Southwood, Brad Cooper, Jenni Calame and Dave Pratt come together for one more picture.

Class president Tom Hatcher delivers an inspiring message to this class of future alumni.

Top Dogs: The Top 5 of the Class of '86

Not only known for academic excellence, Angie Joice is probably most recognized as Big A. She plans to go to ISU, majoring in Accounting.

Dennis Wagner, the only member of the class of '86 to finish high school with a 4.0, shows here his devotion to photography and newspaper work. He plans to attend Rose Hulman next year.

Corrie Jordan, a national baton twirling champion, will spend her next few years studying business at IU where she will twirl in the band.

One of Lincoln's top golfer's, Curt Hidde is undecided at this time of his major, but will be attending IU.

Spurred by her academic achievements, Sue Tomson is shown here accepting recognition for the scholarship awarded to her by Depauw University.

Juniors: The Under-Upper Classmen

After climbing another step up the ladder to graduation, the juniors thought this year would continue to be the same old thing. Then things started rolling. Jason Fithian thought of the idea for the float competition: the huge Coca-Cola can demonstrating the theme "Lincoln is the Real Thing." With the float the juniors won the competition for the second successive year despite the heavy rivalry between seniors and juniors.

Class officers got a preview of the selling experience at volleyball games. Later, all other juniors filled out work forms and began to refine their selling abilities at the boys' basketball games. A few more helping hands were added to the list of workers since the juniors who played boys' basketball and were cheerleaders had to work three games too.

Another memorable moment came when the juniors won the first Spirit Stick Competition. The seniors vigorously protested until they were able to take the Stick back into their possession.

Work on the prom began earlier than in past years since the date was set for April 25 because of conflicts with the SAT on May 4. The prom committee chose "Stairway to Heaven" as the theme using songs "Stairway to Heaven" by Led Zeppelin and "Heaven" by Bryan Adams. March 1 marked the start of the actual building of the prom. The prom featured a stream, fountains, and an ice sculpture to add to the "heavenly" theme.

The final job of the junior class was the decoration of graduation, and the class pulled it off beautifully.

As May approached, everyone got ready for their big senior year by electing new officers, taking the SAT, and looking toward college. It was a year to be remembered.

Sophomores Have What It Takes

With a year of high school experience behind them, the class of '88 once again entered the halls of Lincoln. No longer plagued by the title "Greenie," the Sophomores took on the '85-'86 school year with newfound confidence. Geared by capable officers, sponsors, and student council members Angela Cleveland, Gretchen Doolittle, Lori Glass, Rob Greene, Desiree McCray and Laura Tromley, the class was bound for success.

To start the year off, many long hours were spent planning and building a float for the annual homecoming competition. Proving their talent once again, the sophomores made an impressive entry with "An Alice Victory Is No Surprise," featuring a jack-in-the-box and several class members disguised as clowns to accompany the float.

In September, the Sophomores found themselves choosing that special class ring. Josten's representatives helped individuals to find the perfect ring, a keepsake for years to come and a special memory of L.H.S.!

In athletics, the class of '88 shined brightly. Sophomores usually lead the way on the J.V. teams; however, Kari Cassity, Rusty Johnson and Ralph Smith caught varsity basketball action, while Scott Collier saw plenty of varsity football playing time. Making a big splash at the state competition, Jenny Tuttle received a third place medal for her effort in the 100M backstroke. Raising spirit for their excellent peers were sophomore J.V. Cheerleaders Angela Cleveland, Gretchen Doolittle and Melissa Hendricks.

With two impressive years behind them, the class of '88 has proven again that it has what it takes.

Everybody's Favorite Hour

Although lunch hour is the favorite hour of most students, many see room for improvement. One hundred sophomores were surveyed at the beginning of the second semester. The students were asked where they went for lunch, whether or not they drove, how much they spent, as well as other questions concerning their lunch hour at Lincoln High.

Of the 100 sophomores sur-

Illustrating our survey theme, Marcus Bunting, Chad Ferguson, Derek Blue, and Rob Green enjoy the freedom and company of friends during lunch hour.

veyed, 66% didn't drive to lunch, but 34% had friends that did. When asked where they most frequently ate lunch, the largest majority answered that they went downtown. There was a wide variety of favorite restaurants, but McDonalds rated highest.

On the average, the sophomores surveyed said that they spent $2.00 or $3.00 on their lunch hour. While some students acquired their funds through employment, most were supplied with money from parents.

When asked what their favorite part of lunch was, most enjoyed the freedom from the routine classes. Others just enjoyed being in the company of friends.

Most felt improvements needed to be made in the time allowed for lunch. Since Lincoln has an open campus, it is especially hard for those who don't drive to walk to a restaurant, be served, and walk back in time for their next hour.

However inconvenient it may seem, the students seem to cope and enjoy the freedom of having an open campus.

Starting at the Beginning

As the 1985-86 school year began, many important things stood to be accomplished by all. Many of the major accomplishments were made by the freshmen that had become a part of Lincoln. This special group of "greenies" tackled the new school year with enthusiasm and got off to a great high school beginning. Under the direction of class sponsors Mr. Gary Case and Ms. Teri Eli, and class officers Amy Luking, President; Julie Wild, Secretary; Angie Bullock, Vice President; and Rob Green, Treasurer, the class was eager to go.

Traditionally, the freshmen went through the not so appreciated teasing and tantalizing that comes with the first year of high school. Undeserving of the hard times, the freshmen's accomplishments ranged from the building of their first homecoming float, "Rise To A Victory," to working hard both academically and athletically.

Standing out in sports, Matt Hendrixson occasionally helped out by starting Varsity basketball games, while Dawn Walker dedicated herself to starting on the Jr. Varsity volleyball team. Also in basketball, the freshmen boys had an outstanding record, and also held the conference championship title. Many of the girls also contributed to the girls Jr. Varsity team for a great seasonal record.

Academically, no one could hold back the acceleration of this class. Many of them made the honor role and attained high honors.

By the end of the school year, the freshmen class was looking forward to future high school years and many more major accomplishments.

Fads

As defined in Webster's Collegiate Dictionary, a fad is a "practice of interest followed for a short time with exaggerated zeal." Fads have drastically changed from the days of bell bottom pants and Tiger Beat, to Swatches and IROC-Z's. Lincoln has set it's own precedent for fads. Students were asked their opinions of the fads they thought were prominent and the ones that had lost their pizzazz.

Boredom

People have many reasons for being bored and many ways to solve their boredom. Lincoln students and teachers are no different.

Many things may cause boredom. Sometimes boredom develops when a student must listen to things for a second and third time. Boredom usually starts during a class in which a student does not do very well and it carries through the rest of the day. Many people would rather be doing other things like sleeping, writing notes, talking, or thinking about weekend plans. Math classes seemed to be the most boring for everyone. Students commented that teachers do not add any variety to classes. Also, teachers that talk in a very monotonous voice do not make very exciting classes, either.

Not suprisingly, LHS students are extremely creative in solving their boredom problems. Jodi Hippensteel, for example, said, "I think about the newest shipment of Forenza clothes to come into the Limited this month."

Sophomore Julann Hendrickson says she likes to write notes to her friends and think about her plans for the weekend. Krista Davison, another sophomore, likes to watch people walk down the hallway or day dream, and if class gets really bad, "I even pay attention!" Sophomores Gretchen Doolittle, Amy Theobald, Denise Stiles, and Angela Cleveland all fall into the category of doodlers. Doodling is probably the most popular way of solving boredom at Lincoln.

Boredom is an age-old problem with age-old causes. It will probably never be eliminated completely. As long as there are students who must listen to teachers, there will be students who will be bored.

Freshman Heather Chanley does her best to stay awake while listening to a lecture. One sign of boredom is propping the head up as seen here.

United We Stand; Divided We Fall

It's been a proven fact through history that groups which are united stand a better chance of attaining their goals than groups that are divided. All one has to do is to read through history books to find that this is true. Thus, this knowledge should be incorporated into high school so students may succeed in all that they attempt. Continuous mass support of only certain groups leads to success of only these groups. These groups may benefit from it, but many other groups suffer because of it.

In this establishment there are two classic examples. The first pertains to academics, athletics, and other extracurricular activities. At Lincoln, Boys' basketball gets the most attention and support, with football following closely behind. Other sports such as cross country, golf, swimming, and the girls' basketball take a back seat to these two sports. There are still yet more groups that are shoved even farther from the spotlight, namely band, choir, various clubs, and academic achievers. If these other people knew there was a great amount of approval and support backing them, they could tackle their goals with more confidence which is essential just to make success a possibility. Success for Lincoln as a whole can only be achieved if all students at Lincoln are successful.

The second example pertains to the traditional hierarchy of classes. The seniors have always been the leaders with an intimidating air going hand in hand with their upper-classmen title. The juniors follow with a sense of arrogance because of their new-found power and position. Sophomores just sigh with relief that they are no longer freshmen. Freshmen usually feel uncomfortable and inferior to the rest of the students. This is not the way things should be. Lincoln as a school should be more like a family. The seniors and juniors should be like the big brothers and sisters taking care of and watching out for their little brothers and sisters, the sophomores and freshmen.

Boys' basketball is the most supported activity at Lincoln. It is important that we learn to support all our students this way.

It is too late for the class of nineteen hundred and eighty-six to take any measures to help improve these situations. Therefore it is left up to the class of eighty seven and other future graduating classes. Lincoln will be more successful and run smoothly if there are less competition and more cooperation in all areas.

Flats of all colors became popular and practical. They were worn with outfits ranging from jeans to shorts to skirts and dresses.

Stacey Biehl in an over-sized shirt and flowered pants, Ginny A-rends in a bright, springy suspender outfit, Karista Overfelt in an ever-popular Mickey Mouse shirt and baggy slacks, and Dan Szewzak in basic jeans and a flowered shirt are right in style as they converse in the halls.

Freshmen Polly Luse and Dawn Walker are the epitome of fashion in flowered and cropped pants and matching sweaters.

In her tapered cotton knit black pants and bright blousey top, Debbi Cullison looks right in style as she studies before class.

Fashion Tricks '86

As always, fashion styles came and went throughout the year. Many were brand new and some were left over from years past. Pants were baggy and cropped with patterns of flowers, paisley, and bright colors. "Jams" quickly became the newest rage. Students wore them everywhere, including ball-games.

Shirts and blouses were over-sized in bright colors. They were printed in flowers and Hawaiian styles. Jackets were also popular.

Skirts were short and slim cut in bright colors and prints.

One of the most noticeable styles were the cotton stirrup pant that became increasingly popular as the year progressed. They were worn with designer t-shirts and over-sized blouses.

Accessories made the outfits this year. Necklaces and earrings were of rhinestones, glass, jewels and were large and loud. Swatches remained the style of wrist watches.

Reeboks were the tennis shoe everyone was wearing, and when they weren't they were probably wearing flats.

We can only wait and see if these trends will last or change during the coming school year.

Senioritis!

Senioritis. A Disease? A condition? Simply a state of mind? Teachers and parents alike ponder this question. Seniors, on the other hand, don't worry about why it occurs; they just take it as it comes. In many ways fun because it gives them excuses to do strange things, but also depressing as it causes students to want to quit studying. Senioritis has become an accepted part of the last year of high school. Even though its causes and affects on people are extremely diverse, one thing is certain, senioritis is likely to remain.

Taking advantage of a lax in rules on the seniors' last day, Doug Blome shows off his shades.

Seniors Lead Season

Lead by a group of dedicated seniors, the Vincennes Soccer Team had a successful season at three and five. Successful in the sense that it gained its first fans and expanded its schedule.

All the team members were Lincoln students, although soccer is not a school sport. Seniors played the role of co-captains during the year with Mike Stewart and goalie Steve Blocker accepting the honor several times.

Vincennes' best assets were a tough goalie and a strong front line which tended to play well together as a team.

Most players agreed that senior Tim Goodwin was not only the most improved player on the team, but also the most valuable.

Getting Places

Cars. Kids have all kinds of them. Big, small, old, new, bright, and rusty are all adjectives that describe the wide variety of autos driven by teenagers. Although some get their pick of any car, most kids settle for what they can afford or their parents will buy. Every kind and color of the rainbow is represented. Foreign and domestic cars litter the streets surrounding school showing a vast array of styles. A car is probably a teen's most prized and used possession. It sometimes is a reflection of the teen itself.

Sipping his breakfast drink, Kevin Greenwood lounges on his pride and joy.

Catching a few winks of needed sleep, Brad Jewel and Mike Alderton rest on Brad's car.

Home Away From Home

Lockers, where we spend half our time everyday, may be the only class outside of composition that we can express ourselves. Students spend much time decorating these metal boxes. Common decorations for lockers include personal pictures, magazine pictures, stickers, and cards. Friends, family, rock stars, movie stars, and boy/girl friends are popular pictures. Originality is the key to a good locker. Personal memorabilia from school or family events give lockers an individual touch. However students decide to decorate lockers, they are always a reflection of their ideas and styles.

Pat Redmond attempts to explain chemistry to Nancy Bilske in front of brightly decorated lockers in the hallway.

Sitting around her locker before school, Susan Ostendorf reaches for her American History book.

Stephanie Auberry chose to decorate her lockers with pictures of her boyfriend and her favorite musicians as well as "Love is" clippings.

Junior Stacey Biehl, whose locker is decorated with signs pertaining to basketball and volleyball, searches for her homework.

Most students decorate their lockers with pictures of personal events and good friends and family.

First Annual Lincoln Log Survey

Near the end of the school year, the Lincoln Log Staff polled over 100 students to see what their favorites were in several categories. In addition, students were asked several unusual questions. Here are the results.

Most people believe, no, we will not make contact with life from another planet.

The average age most students plan to marry is 23.

Sexiest Actor—Tom Cruise (57%) Sexiest Actress—Bo Derek (52%)

88% of those surveyed would take Einstein's brain for 24 hours.

The average number of kids wanted by students was 2.

Most students say it is OK for a girl to ask a guy out as long as "she isn't pushy".

Most people would tell a stranger he had his fly open.

44% of the students claimed Coke as their favorite soft-drink. Following closely was Sun-kist and Dr. Pepper.

McDonalds and Rax each took 36% of the vote, with Wendys in second place, as the most popular restaurant.

Far and away the winner, the favorite car of Lincoln students was the Porsche.

Stephen King proved to be the best author by gaining 72% of the vote.

501 Blues were the king of jeans by winning a high 88% of the vote.

The Cosby Show nudged out Family Ties by with 50% and 49%, respectfully.

I.U. collected 62% to become the favorite college.

Let's here it for the Celtics! They came away with 83% of the votes for favorite basketball team. Second place was the mighty Al-ices.

With 78%, blue eyes clearly was the color to have.

Ice cream flavors were varied, but vanilla had the biggest percentage with 33%.

Pat Sajack and Vanna White would be proud as they hosted the favorite game show, Wheel of Fortune.

Most people listed their graduating year as their favorite class. Here the Class of '89 rides in the Homecoming parade.

Mr. Miller poses with one of the most liked teachers, Mr. Battles. Tying with Mr. Battles were Mrs. Hatton and Mr. Toy.

These astronauts were those that were killed in the shuttle explosion but the vote for "Would you go up in the shuttle if given a chance" was split down the middle.

turing 77% of the votes.

Chicago took both the favorite baseball team with the Cubs and football team with the Bears.

Madonna and Sean Penn was the favorite celebrity couple, followed by Heather Locklear and Tommy Lee.

Red and blue tied for favorite color with 39% of the votes each.

The Mutt emerged as the favorite dog with 35% of the votes.

Most students said the thing they would most like to change about Lincoln was the band of independent periods.

The age old fight between looks and personality continues as they tied for the number one thing kids look for in a date.

Lincoln and JFK were the best presidents, with FDR behind.

Nuclear War and college scare Lincoln students more than anything with 44% and 43% respectively.

Students tend to spend approximately $2.50 for lunch.

Who would you most like to have dinner with? President Reagan, of course, with 72% of the vote.

Steve Alford and Bob Knight are shown here. Basketball beat football for the favorite sport.

Although it emerged with only 6% of the vote, Hershey was the leading candy bar.

Lincoln's favorite magazine was Seventeen with 65% of the vote.

Easily taking the high spot, Reeboks received 78% of the votes for favorite tennis shoe.

Our own Asylum and Van Halen tied for best group, followed closely by the Beatles.

Beverly Hills Cop easily defeated its closest rival, Back to the Future, to be the number one movie.

Tracy-

My very best friend. Well its been 3 years now. Lets go for 4! I know we havent spent that much time together but maybe sometime we can relive our old times. Its really weird that we dont hang around that much anymore. I always think about all the times we were together. We had such a great time! There are many more to come. We will always be best friends! If you ever need someone to talk to; you know I'm always here and you can trust me! Well, lets not be sad for the times that have passed by. Lets enjoy the "Excellent" times to come!

The NASA Space Program suffered a major disaster as the Challenger exploded on January 28, 1986, at 11:38 a.m., one minute after take-off. School teacher Christa McAuliffe was aboard the Challenger.

The Vincennes Lincoln Alices won their state-record 57th sectional, first defeating South Knox, 75-57, and then defeating Vincennes Rivet in the final, 65-58.

Bobby Rahal won the 70th running of the Indianapolis 500.

Democrat Frank McCloskey was declared the winner by four votes in a House recount of the Indiana 8th District election results.

Jean Claude Duvalier, Haiti's president for life, left his country to seek temporary asylum in France, ending his family's 28-year reign.

Vietnam admitted that MIA's may still be in the country, and the U.S. was invited to come to look for remains.

The long, disputed election of the Philippines came to an end as the people chose Corazon Aquino to be the new president. Former president Ferdinand Marcos fled to Hawaii.

Jogn Demjanjuk, the first alledged Nazi war criminal to be extradited by the U.S. to Israel, arrived to stand trial on charges of mass murder in the deaths of thousands of Jews in Nazi gas chambers.

William Schroeder continued to live with his artifical heart, making history as the longest surviving artifical heart recipient.

A body found buried in Brazil, South America, was identified as that of Nazi war criminal Josef Mengele.

Attracting the largest crowds at the box office were movie stars Sylvester Stallone, Tom Cruise, and Michael J. Fox.

In baseball Pete Rose broke Ty Cobb's record for career hits.

Starving victims of famine in Africa prompted the "We Are the World" campaign as well as other governmental efforts.

Construction on the new Lincoln High School began early in the spring of 1986.

OPEC nations suffered major problems as the price of oil dropped to $12.00 a barrel. Consumers paid 75¢ for a gallon of gas.

Halley's Comet appeared in 1986. The comet appears every 76 years.

The White House declared the U.S. military strike against Libyan terrorist targets a success that "struck a blow against terrorism and set a message" to Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy.

AIDS claimed 14,000 lives, including movie and television star Rock Hudson.

Sophomore Steve Magruder and senior Bill Marsh seem to "Have it in" for junior Andrea Rollins as they horse around after school.

Seniors Angie Crocket and Angie Joice keep things light as they laugh over their experiment in Chemistry II. The entire second semester of the class is spent in lab.

Standing around the 5th Street door at the end of lunch hour is a favorite of many band members and other students including junior Roby Wilson.

Crowding around the piano before a play audition are (starting at top center) Steve Magruder, Todd Montgomery, Matt Keller, Lori Stevenson, Dawn McAllister, Suzette Koch, Laura Sievers, and Brenda Thais.

Tracy,
JUNIORS! FINALLY!
you're a real sweet person. I hope in the future we can become better friends! Never forget good ole Mr.
Weisman! That was such a fun class!
Good Luck is whatever you do!

Love ya
Laura

We would like to thank all members of the Lincoln Log staff including John Cooper, Bob Kiger, Stacey Biehl, Nancy Bilske, and Gina Benson, who were not mentioned above. We wouldn't have made all of our deadlines without their hard work and dedication. We would also like to give a special thanks to Mr. Steve Toy who did a wonderful job even though it was his first year.

THANKS!!

Les & Jenn

Volume 77 of the Lincoln Log was printed by Herff Jones Yearbooks in Montgomery, Alabama. Our representative was Mr. Jerry Cranny. Photographs were taken by Creative Images and Lesley Stedman unless otherwise indicated.

 "88 Rocks"

Tracy,
 You tell her that I love her & I'll be with her, making that I'll be with her, making get to know her & I'll be with her, making
 "88"

Tracy,
 Love,
 Julie

Tracy,
 We've had some pretty good times together & I hope there's many more to come! I'm glad we've become better friends!
 The best of luck w/
 everything you do!
 Love ya,
 Jul

TO TRACY, WHO WAS ALWAYS
 THERE TO SHOW
 SUPPORT WITH HER
 LOVELY SMILE AND GRACEFUL TOUCH.

Love,
 Bob Thompson

Tracy,
 Hi! You're a really sweet girl. I'm glad I got to know you better this year. Good luck w/ Shane
